African leader killed in crash

By LAURINDA KEYS
The Associated Press

KOMATIPOORT, South Africa — President Samora Machel of Mozambique, who led his Marxist nation through 11 crisis-ridden years of independence, was killed when his plane crashed into a rainswept South African hillside.

Marcelino dos Santos, No. 2 man in Mozambique's ruling Frelimo party, said in a nationwide radio address that Machel, 53, and other senior officials died in the crash of the presidential plane Sunday night just across the border in South Africa "in circumstances not yet clarified."

South Africa said all but 10 of the 39 people aboard were killed.

The first official confirmation by Machel's government came more than 12 hours after dos Santos said in his first announcement on the radio that the president's jet had not returned on schedule from Zambia. The radio played solemn music throughout the day.

He said Monday night that a 60-day period of national mourning had been declared.

The Soviet-built plane crashed 200 yards inside South Africa's frontier with Mozambique about 30 miles south of this border town, said the South African foreign minister, R.F. Botha.

South Africa's Bureau for Information said the Soviet pilot and nine other people survived the crash. Among the senior officials killed was Transport Minister Luis Alcantara Santos, it said.

Machel's body was brought to Komatiport by truck and flown to Maputo, the bureau said at a temporary office it established here.

Earlier reports put the death toll at 27, but two more bodies were found in the wreckage of the twin-engine Tupolev 134A jet, it said.

In Lisbon, the Portuguese news agency ANOP quoted official sources and aviation experts it did not identify as saying the crash was caused by human error. It did not elaborate.

Machel's death left Mozambique without a leader at a time of worsening drought, increasing attacks by anti-Marxist rebels and growing conflict with South Africa.

Prime Minister Mario Machungo dos Santos, who is the secretary of Parliament, are expected to share decisions until a successor is chosen after the funeral, expected sometime next week.

Both are considered candidates along with Joaquim Chissano, who was prime minister in a transitional

Man arrested in pre-dawn shooting

Charged with firing shots at police officers

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — A pre-dawn exchange of gunfire in Twin Falls Monday, between police officers and a man barricaded in his home with a 30-06-caliber rifle, ended after three tense hours with some bullet holes in police cars and adjoining building windows — but no injuries.

A 28-year-old Twin Falls man, charged with firing shots at three police officers in the early morning standoff with city, state and county officers, was in the Twin Falls County Jail Monday evening in lieu of $20,000 bond.

Thomas Brungard of 351 4th Ave. N., who allegedly barricaded himself in his home after a family dispute, is charged with four felonies.

The complaint against Brungard charges he fired five shots at officers. As a result, he faces three felony counts of aggravated assault on a police officer and one of use of a firearm in commission of felonies.

He was arraigned before Magistrate Michael Redman Monday afternoon and granted public defender services. The prosecutor recommended bond of $100,000 on each count, but Redman said that because there was no past record of violence, he would set a $5,000 bond per each offense. If Brungard posts bond and is released, he would be required to refrain from use of any alcohol, Redman said.

Brungard told the court he was drunk when the incident took place.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said that three officers had close calls during an exchange of gunfire at 351 4th Ave. N., after they responded to a call for help from a woman at that address.

Qualls said the call was received at 1:17 a.m. Monday and officer Jim Munn went to the location given. He was met by a young boy, who ran from the house and said that his father was in the house, armed with a rifle. Qualls said Brungard was drunk and his daughter had already fled the building.

Two other city officers, Don Walden and Ron Roberson, went to the scene to assist Munn. The first shot was fired as they approached the house, Qualls said, passing between Walden and Roberson as they walked, side-by-side, toward the front door.

A total of seven shots were fired, including five from the house and two return shots from police officers. One shot was fired at Idaho

Ozone loss linked to chemical process

By GUY DARST
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The annual disappearance of much of the protective ozone layer over the South Pole appears to be a chemical process that isn't caused by changing weather or solar activity, scientists reported from Antarctica on Monday.

However, they said they could not confirm the leading theory of the cause of the October ozone disappearance — that man-made chlorofluorocarbon chemicals used as refrigeration fluids are responsible. Some of their findings, however, are consistent with that theory.

The leader of the expedition, Susan Solomon, a chemist from the Boulder, Colo., lab of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, told a news conference at the National Science Foundation she was more concerned that she had been before the expedition, because science has been "unable to come up with an explanation."

Ms. Solomon and 17 other scientists from government and university laboratories were hurriedly dispatched to Antarctica in August after examination of old satellite data confirmed the unexpected finding of a British team that starting in the 1970s, ozone concentrations had fallen sharply each October.

Ozone makes life on earth possible by filtering the ultraviolet rays of the sun. The discovery of the Antarctic hole has accelerated efforts to confirm the "refrigerator" theory that chlorofluorocarbon emissions will destroy ozone, let more ultraviolet through and thus increase skin cancer, damage crops and livestock and degrade plastics.

In December, major producing nations are meeting in Geneva to consider control measures. Other nations refused to go along with a U.S. regulation that banned the chemicals as aerosol propellants in 1978.

Ms. Solomon, speaking by telephone from the U.S. base at McMurdo, said she was confident the chemicals were the cause.

Court charges Hasenfus with terrorism

By ANDREW SELSKY
The Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The leftist Sandinista government brought Eugene Hasenfus before a revolutionary court Monday and charged him with terrorism and violating public order on behalf of the U.S. government.

The 45-year-old American, dressed in a black T-shirt, dirty blue jeans and combat boots, listened stonily as the court president seated at the same rectangular table read more than 14 pages of charges against him.

If convicted by the People's Tribunal, Hasenfus faces up to 30 years in prison. He was captured Oct. 6 by government troops who shot down a cargo plane ferrying supplies to U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

"We will demonstrate that the actions imputed (to Hasenfus) are indissolubly linked to the official policy of the government of the United States towards the Republic of Nicaragua," said court president Reynaldo Monterrey, "regarding the government's charges against Hasenfus."

"In flying over Nicaraguan territory with the object of supplying forces financed and directed by the North American government who act against the legally constituted government of Nicaragua without any expressed authorization of this country, (Hasenfus) is carrying out acts that impair the independence, the sovereignty and the integrity of the nation," the charges read.

Nicaragua charged the United States had violated "the sacred basic principles of our internal laws and the charters of the United Nations, the Organization of American States and other treaties in force, as well as the basic principles of customary international law."

The accusations were translated into English by an interpreter.

Written charges against Hasenfus were presented by Justice Minister Rodrigo Irujo in the small courtroom, which was packed with journalists.

Irujo said the charges were "violating the public order and security, criminal association and terrorism." The justice minister said government documents turned over to the court included Hasenfus' confession.

Hasenfus was brought into the courtroom about two hours after the hearing started, and was seated at a table near the court president. His wife Sally arrived at the court moments before the session began, accompanied by U.S. Consul Donald Tyson.

Hasenfus turned occasionally to smile at his wife, who stood about 15 feet behind him.

General Motors pulls out of South Africa

By JANET BRAUNSTEIN
The Associated Press

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. announced Monday that it was pulling out of South Africa, a move Chairman Roger B. Smith attributed both to financial losses and that nation's slowness to abolish apartheid.

General Motors is the second-largest U.S. employer in South Africa, behind Mobil, according to the Investor Responsibility Research Center in Washington, D.C. In 1985, 39 U.S. companies pulled out of South Africa, followed by 22 so far in 1986.

General Motors South African Ltd., a wholly owned subsidiary, has annual sales in the $300 million range and a 2,800-member workforce that is predominantly non-white.

It has assets worth about $140 million and makes cars by GM's German and Japanese partners, Adam Opel, Isuzu and Suzuki, according to GM spokesman George Schreck.

GM is expected to be sold to a group headed by the South African management at its Port Elizabeth car and truck assembly plant. The purchase price was not disclosed.

A GM engine plant in South Africa has been idle for several years and is not part of the package being sold, said Ron Theis, another company spokesman.

Smith said GM was "struggling desperately" in South Africa because of the nation's economy. He said the company's sales and market share have dropped substantially in the past year and no quick improvement was foreseen.

"Our aim is to enable the new owners to start from a strong position, to continue to provide job opportunities for the employees and to continue to serve our customers," Smith said in a statement.

Smith said the proposed sale also was a result of GM's decision to pull out of South Africa.

Workers fired over plutonium handling

Tuesday, October 21, 1986 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-3

Idaho/West

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Rockwell Hanford Operations has fired or punished seven employees in the wake of safety violations at a Hanford nuclear reservation plutonium processing plant, a spokesman said Monday.

The company fired three employees, removed two others from management positions, reassigned another manager and reprimanded a seventh after an investigation into a Sept. 29 incident, Mark Mussolf said.

Citing privacy considerations, Mussolf refused to identify the employees or describe their jobs.

However, all seven were employed at the Plutonium Finishing Plant when the serious plutonium handling safety violation occurred, he said.

"Rockwell Hanford Operations continues to view the incident as being very serious, meriting continued strong actions," Mussolf said.

Rockwell Hanford operates chemical processing, waste management and security activities on the 570-square-mile reservation for the U.S. Department of Energy.

The agency ordered the closure of the Plutonium-Uranium Extraction (PUREX) Plant and the Plutonium Finishing Plant, also called the Z Plant, on Oct. 8.

Spent control rods from the reservation's N Reactor are chemically dissolved to remove highly radioactive materials at the PUREX plant. Powdered plutonium is formed at the Finishing Plant into discs which are used in the manufacture of nuclear weapons.

A review of a Sept. 29 incident at the Finishing Plant indicated workers had violated standards intended to prevent the possible mixing of two masses of plutonium that could lead to a catastrophic release of radiation and heat.

Mike Lawrence, the top Energy Department official at Hanford, said the review of the incident indicated deficiencies in Rockwell's overall procedures and controls for handling plutonium.

Lawrence said the plants would remain closed until Rockwell Hanford submitted a satisfactory plan of corrective actions.

As of Monday, no plan had been submitted, said Tom Bauman, an Energy Department spokesman. There have been no negotiations between the federal agency and the company, he said.

"It's still wide open," Bauman said. "We're reviewing what Rockwell Hanford is doing and keeping an eye on it."

Mussolf said he is prohibited from discussing what actions the company will propose.

"We've taken a position that until we work everything out with the Department of Energy, it would be inappropriate to comment," he said.

The personnel action marks the second time in the last two months that top Rockwell Hanford employees have been fired or demoted for safety flaws in chemical processing or waste management activities.

James Patterson, the director of plant operations and former safety director, resigned in August after an investigation into the removal of radiation warning signs prior to a visit by Gov. Butch Gardner in March 1985.

A subordinate was demoted and two others were reprimanded in connection with the incident.

Utah man charged in shooting death

PRICE, Utah (AP) — A Price man was charged Monday in 11th Circuit Court with second-degree murder in the weekend shooting death of a deer hunter at a Carbon County campsite.

Daniel D. Padilla, 29, is accused of killing Anthony Palacios, 28, of Helper, during an argument Friday at his hunting camp, authorities said.

Prosecutor alleges Aryan assassination plot

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A small northern Idaho group with ties to the white supremacist Aryan Nations apparently marked a member for assassination after he was arrested for trying to pass counterfeit $20 bills, a federal prosecutor said Monday.

Authorities have recovered a bomb that was meant to kill Edward Hawley, one of five people alleged to be "members of the Bruder Schweigen Strike Force II," said Earl Hicks, assistant U.S. attorney.

The disclosure came at a court hearing in which the attorney for another member of the group, David Dorr, asked U.S. District Judge Robert McNichols to release Dorr, who has been held without bond since his arrest Oct. 2.

The judge took the matter under advisement, saying he would have to review tapes of a five-hour hearing conducted earlier by U.S. Magistrate Smith Moore Myers.

Myers had ordered Dorr held without bond after finding he posed a danger to the community, and that he might flee.

Attorney Mark Vovos argued that the federal case against Dorr is based solely on information supplied by Robert Pires, "who is a convicted criminal and an admitted bomber."

Pires admitted a role in four bombings last month in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and became an FBI informant.

"The killing of Mr. Hawley is preposterous," Vovos said in response to statements of the prosecutor.

Said Hicks: "Mr. Pires is not the only person we have. We have evidence from other sources."

After Hawley's arrest at a fair in September, other members of the group feared he would talk with federal investigators, so the death plot was hatched with involvement by his wife, Olive Hawley, authorities said.

Instead, the bomb was discarded and Hawley was sent on a "mission" that included planting four bombs, three of which exploded Sept. 29, authorities charge.

The bomb that was meant to kill Hawley was found about a mile from the residence of Dorr and his wife, Debbie, Hicks said.

Authorities say the group intended to use counterfeiting and robberies to resume a race war begun by The Order.

The Church of Jesus Christ Christian (Aryan Nations) based near Hayden Lake, Idaho, was the springboard for the militant group The Order, whose members were accused of bank and armored car robberies, murders, bombings, and counterfeiting in late 1983 and 1984.

Ten Order members were convicted of racketeering last year and 12 others pleaded guilty.

Panel considers state vo-tech tax

BOISE (AP) — A special legislative committee trying to revamp financing for Idaho's two junior colleges is considering a statewide property tax to underwrite vocational-technical education so general tax money earmarked for that purpose can be funneled to academic programs at the two-year schools.

But members of the joint House-Senate committee on junior colleges, meeting in Boise on Monday, wanted more details about such a proposal, along with its ramifications on control over the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls and North Idaho College in Coeur d'Alene.

Rep. Janet Hay, R-Nampa, a former member of the state Board of Education, offered the plan as the board considered the possibility of trying to bolster state support for the two schools that now receive a significant amount of their budgets from local property taxpayers even though their students come from outside those limited districts.

Concern over junior college financing has intensified because the local taxing districts have reached their levy limits while state support has remained at between 35 percent and 40 percent and student fees have been raised to what CSI President Gerald Meyerhoeffer called "extreme" for two-year schools.

Compounding the problem has been the fact that the state fully finances what amount to junior college, or community college, courses at Boise State University and Lewis-Clark State College because they are part of the state-supported university system.

Proposals have been made to boost state support for the junior colleges to 50 percent, a move that would add about $2 million to the current general revenue allocation of $5.3 million but ease the disparity between the junior colleges and the universities.

Military buildup cost jobs

BOISE (AP) — The Reagan administration's military buildup has cost the nation almost 1.15 million jobs, including 14,490 in Idaho, according to a study conducted by a Michigan-based economics consulting firm.

The report, "The Empty Pork Barrel: The Employment Cost of the Military Buildup, 1981-1985," analyzes the impact of the $100 billion after-inflation increase in military spending during that period on the creation of jobs.

Employment Research Associates, Lansing, Mich., compared the actual number of jobs created to the number that would have been created "if this money had been spent on normal civilian economic activities."

The study found that Idaho suffered a net loss of jobs in seven of 10 economic areas examined. It recorded slight increases in the sectors of military oriented durable goods and military-related personnel, and a somewhat larger increase of 1,640 jobs in the area of non-durable goods.

But the state lost more than 4,000 jobs each in the wholesale and retail trade, services, and state, local and civilian federal government sectors, according to the report. It also lost jobs in the areas of non-military durable goods, construction, transportation, utilities and mining, and finance, insurance and real estate.

Idaho ranked 27th of the 36 states—Idaho's neighboring states—of Utah, Nevada and Washington also gained jobs, but the study showed Oregon, Montana and Wyoming all suffered net losses.

In-between season won't endure long

Autumn has reached what might best be described as that in-between stage.

The early season showers and snows were replaced by a couple of weeks of calm, clear weather with bright afternoon sunshine and crisp morning temperatures which made days delightful for those fortunate enough to be outdoors. The near-freezing levels of early morning turned leaves golden on countless trees, and now the skeletal branches show clearly in many places as the leaves drift to the lawns below.

The last tomatoes and zucchini have been picked, and the vines — blackened by October's sharp frosts — have vanished into the compost heap or the maw of the refuse truck.

A few additional showers have fallen, offering a reminder that the time for putting up storm windows and other winterizing chores around home is at hand. But it's still too mild outside to think seriously of such work. Wait for that sunny weekend to tend to those matters.

Similarly, the summer wardrobe doesn't fit the current conditions, but it seems too early to dig out the truly heavy attire that the chill of winter will demand.

On the positive side, the farmer can at least see the end of much of his field work as harvesting nears its windup. The autumn ritual of the World Series will soon yield to indoor sports such as basketball, though football will be with us for many more weeks to come. The year-end holiday festivities which brighten the waning weeks of autumn and the onset of winter are drawing steadily closer.

So there's much to look ahead to as autumn moves from its middle weeks toward winter — which will bring accumulations of snow, making that season perhaps the best of all for those waiting impatiently to break out their skis and take to the slopes or the trails.

Bennett's friendship goes unrecognized

WASHINGTON — The secretary of education went to Harvard the other day and as is the secretary's wont, played ball in the china shop. For his pains, he was roundly criticized by numerous academic muckamucks, who reflexively raked him over the coals on account of his conservative views and what they perceive to be his hostility to higher education.

But their attacks suggest nothing so much as that, characteristically, they were allowing ideology to color their judgment; what they cannot or will not acknowledge is that William Bennett's speech at Harvard is a brilliant analysis of the ills of the American university.

"Universities deserve the kind of scrutiny they like to give to others," Bennett told his audience. "Universities cost a lot, and puff and boast a lot. From time to time, it's not a bad idea to look at what's really going on, and to ask some hard questions."

Jonathan Yardley

That is precisely what Bennett did. While making a point of emphasizing his own deep affection for and indebtedness to the community of scholars, Bennett spared no words in describing what he feels has gone awry in that community. Though he has made most of the same points at other times and places, the Harvard speech brought them together in a single, coherent document. Its central arguments include the following:

- "The university claims to educate, to improve the minds — even the hearts — of young men and women. Sometimes it does this, to be sure — but, not as often, and not as wholeheartedly and as purposefully and as successfully as it should."

Not merely do administrators and professors tend to treat students — undergraduates in particular — as pests, Bennett says, but they have largely given up the burdensome task of requiring that students learn "the basic body of knowledge which universities once took it upon themselves as their obligation to transmit, under the name of a liberal education, from ages past to ages present and future."

- Although "American colleges and universities are quick to proclaim their duty to address all sorts of things that are wrong in the world, to speak truth to power, to discourse on the most complex social and moral issues beyond their walls," most "would not dream of claiming to offer a moral education to their students."

On the question of drugs in particular, "colleges that claim, as they might put it, to 'lead society's conscience on various social problems' should not, when faced by a real problem within their competence to deal with, duck or throw up their hands."

- The obsession of higher education with money is distasteful and demeaning. The higher-education lobbyists in Washington talk only infrequently about "issues like purpose, quality, the moral authority and responsibility of universities; most of the time, all we hear from them are pleas for money, for more money."

This notwithstanding that by any reasonable standard, American higher education is prosperous: the number of colleges and universities has nearly doubled since 1950, and gross expenditures on them (in constant 1985-86 dollars) has multiplied more than eight times in the same period.

- Higher education is in danger of defaulting on its claim to be "home for the free exchange of ideas." Hostility on the campuses to right-of-center views, and those who express them, is widespread.

The "liberal bias" on the campuses "need not be a great problem, as long as we are very careful that a generally shared political view."

WILLIAM BENNETT
Analyzes education's ills

point does not lead to the explicit or implicit censorship of unpopular ideas." But "if we cannot protect the basic principle of academic freedom, then we cannot even begin to hope that our colleges and universities will evolve into a recognizable imitation of what they claim to be."

Yes, this is basic Bennett: outspoken, blunt, contentious. Basic Bennett doesn't go over well on the campuses, so it is dismissed out of hand. But this dismissal simply proves Bennett's point. He is trying to engage the community of higher education in a serious conversation about its mission, but that community simply refuses to talk seriously about the issues he raises — and in so doing demonstrates precisely the narrow-mindedness that he laments.

Bennett is the best friend higher education now has in public life, because he cares so deeply about educational standards and is in a position to do something about them; but because he works for President Reagan, he is not given a chance.

Bennett, like Reagan, is a buzzword: If Reagan does it, it must be wrong, and if Bennett says it, it must be wrong.

The point was nicely proved in San Francisco, where the American Council on Education held its annual meeting at about the same time as Bennett was speaking at Harvard.

The president of ACE, Robert H. Atwell, seized the occasion to give a speech before some 1,000 college and university administrators in which he indulged in an orgy of Reagan-bashing. He ranted about "unregulated pursuit of self-interest" and "diminished commitment to investing in the 'common social good'" and blamed it all on the Reaganites — as if the academic community were wholly innocent of the same offenses.

His audience, according to The Chronicle of Higher Education, "responded with prolonged applause."

Of course it did: as Bennett said at Harvard, the colleges and universities are expert at "moralizing and moral posturing — especially the kind that does not cost anything of the individual, that does not take time or self-denial or effort."

How easy it is to sit out there in San Francisco, in a sea of the like-minded, blistering Reagan for all of society's woes and, so long as you're at it, for higher education's as well.

But how much harder it would be to sit down with Bennett's speech, if not with Bennett himself, and come to grips with the critical issues he addresses.

To say this isn't to say as well that Bennett is always right, or that his confrontational manner is always constructive. He does tend to come on more strongly than is suitable for some occasions, and to indulge his rather considerable gift for exaggeration.

Though he faults higher education for its reflexive politics, he is himself a person of powerful political impulse which is believed to have political ambitions of his own, and his patience for those with whom he disagrees is not exactly limitless.

But none of this should be allowed to divert our attention from what Bennett is doing. He has had the courage to take on the sacred cows of higher education, to force our attention onto the ways in which it neglects its students while building and fortifying its own empire.

Higher education doesn't like him because he sees right through the cant and the self-righteousness and the pious moralizing, and because he isn't afraid to describe what he sees.

It isn't necessary to be a Reaganite in order to recognize that Bennett is raising important issues in an articulate, forceful way. If higher education would only acknowledge this, we could get rid of the ideological baggage and begin the serious debate about the universities that Bennett is trying to initiate.

Law menaces middle class

Our police put their lives on the line every day. Highway patrols get killed when they stop an automobile. Two of our game wardens were killed, gangland-style by a poacher. Some years ago, pioneers in organized labor sought to seek a place under the sun for our working people. They too, were murdered by gangsters hired by mine owners etc. These people made the supreme sacrifice to make a better life for all of us.

What the eminent labor leader John L. Lewis did for the enslaved coal miners was a monumental and humanitarian achievement. These miners were literally owned by the operators and worked under the most adverse conditions.

Our unions and their leaders have aided in making our country the greatest on the globe and the envy of many.

Our working people, primarily the middle class, are providing food, fiber and luxury for all of us; also they are paying the bulk of our taxes. The so-called right-to-work law or proponents of the same would, in effect, destroy the middle class, so there would be only the rich and the poor.

All of you working people can be victorious by voting "no" to right-to-work or go down the river like Mississippi. A yes vote will only hurt.

Were this a good law, it would be adopted by California, Massachusetts, Minnesota, or others.

Darrington highly effective

Denton Darrington has been an effective spokesman for the citizens of Cassia, Jerome and Minidoka counties during the last four years. In a relatively short period of time, he has gained the respect and confidence of his colleagues and has been given responsible leadership duties.

Denton has been particularly helpful to me in getting much-needed legislation passed through the Senate Judiciary Committee, as well as the full Senate. His support has been instrumental in obtaining passage of legislation to provide crime victims with certain rights, to crack down on drunk drivers, and to expedite consideration of death penalty cases in state court. As a senior member of the Judiciary Committee, he is able to positively influence the improvement of Idaho's criminal justice system.

As chairman of the Senate Health and Welfare Committee, he has brought balance and common sense to state government in this critical area. He has strengthened the state's hand in dealing with pollution, but has brought reason and fairness to the state's regulatory system as it affects legitimate, responsible businesses.

Denton was particularly helpful in securing passage of my hazardous cargo transportation safety bill. This bill provides for training and enforcement procedures which will allow state law enforcement personnel to be better equipped to handle hazardous cargo spills on our highways.

Denton has done a good job in the Legislature and I would urge District 24 voters to support him in his re-election effort.

Sullivan a problem solver

I have been farming in Camas County all my life, but it is getting harder and harder to keep operating. Expenses are up; prices are down, and taxes are a burden. Farmers do not want charity from the government. What we need is higher prices for our products, competitive interest rates and a fair trade policy to open up foreign markets.

We need farmers. We need people in the Legislature who will help the farm and agribusiness until we can compete on an international level, not just wait around and hope things will get better.

Gene Sullivan, Democratic candidate for the House, is a problem solver. Gene would provide the clear thinking and common sense necessary to the decision-making process in the state Legislature. The past Legislature, with its large majority, should have been able to pass any legislation they wanted to; but they really didn't accomplish much for Idaho.

I know Gene Sullivan, and I know he is strong for Idaho. We have a chance to make some changes in the upcoming election. My vote is going to Gene Sullivan because I want to stay in farming and because I want to see some things accomplished in the next Legislature.

Clear choice without law

While reading many editorials for right-to-work, I have noted that many dwell on the issue of freedom of choice. Unions represent only 15 percent of the Idaho workers, so less than one out of every sixth job in Idaho is a union job. If people don't want to be affiliated with unions they have a clear choice, without the right-to-work law.

If the workers want better wages, benefits, and working conditions, they may want to work in a union shop. They should carry their own weight by paying union dues. If allowed to freeload, their freedom to choose will take away from the freedom of the union members, by weakening the strength of the bargaining unit with moral and financial aid at the bargaining table.

Let the workers of Idaho determine by majority rule whether or not they want union shops in the work place. Vote no on Referendum 1.

Leroy choice in this race

This letter is directed to the undecided voters to explain to them why they should vote for David Leroy for governor.

David Leroy, Republican, and Mr. Andrus, Democrat, both bring to the state a revitalized Idaho economy and a strengthened public and higher educational system. It would be hard to argue with or question those motives.

What then is the difference between the two candidates?

Stated most simply, the major difference is in their basic political philosophy and in the role they think state government should play.

Mr. Andrus, by nature and in accordance with his Democratic label, is ready to expand state government to attempt to "fix" Idaho's problems. When he was governor before, he managed to increase the state payroll by 27 percent during his first year in office. Do we really want to accept that kind of government growth a second time?

In contrast, David Leroy has repeatedly emphasized his support for private-sector solutions. Encouraging business will bring the vitality Idaho desires to achieve. Education, along with all of the state's economy, will benefit directly from such growth.

In the past, Mr. Andrus has shown that his idea of a better Idaho is more state employees and a bigger state bureaucracy. The issue is clear. If you are reluctant to have government bigger, more expensive, and more involved in your life, your choice simply has to be a vote for David Leroy for governor of Idaho.

PAMELA SMITH

Stallings should continue

It is not often we find highly qualified, intelligent people to run for elective office in our state.

Most men and women are often asked, but decline, and decide to stay in the private sector for many good reasons. One would be the very negative approach used by their prospective opponents during the election year. I like many Idahoans, am tired of the mud-slinging tactics waged by these groups and individuals. They put character assassination before facts, and voting records and half-truths before dedication. In 1984, Idahoans elected Richard Stallings. One of those individuals that I spoke of earlier: dedicated, intelligent, a family man with high values and standards. Who truly wanted to serve Idaho and bring back respectability to the title of U.S. Representative from Idaho.

Congressman Stallings, in just two short years, has accomplished that task. No one member of our congressional delegation has worked harder and totally dedicated himself to helping our farmers, seniors, and, in general, the common working man and woman of Idaho.

Congressman Stallings' approach to the very difficult task of representing such a large geographical area has been nothing short of a miracle. Anyone who knows his schedule is amazed that a man would work day and night in Washington, then travel to Idaho virtually every weekend to attend to his constituents' needs. Keeping his attendance record high and never forgetting the job of representing Idaho — this is total dedication.

Congressman Stallings has also formed the most responsible staff in our delegation. Making our senators sit up and take notice, and also improve.

Idahoans are an independent people. Richard Stallings reflects our independence. We need a representative in Washington that will question, who will logically think out proposals from both sides of the political aisle. We do not need another rubber stamp politician, who upon the issue is a "yes" man to our administration's every whim.

There has been much said about our congressman canceling out Congressman Craig's vote. This is ridiculous. People are not always right on every issue. Certainly, Larry Craig is no exception.

Let us look at what our congressman has done for Idaho. Saving our sugar industry from bankruptcy. From our state, securing funding for a small business to process potatoes in Glens Ferry, obtaining projects and funding for INEL, and literally working day and night for the farmers and ranchers of Idaho.

Richard Stallings is effective, hardworking, and deserves to continue his job in Washington.

Jerome County needs Hall

People say that this is a Republican County. In order to win, you have to be a Republican. Does it really make a difference if our treasurer is running as a Republican or on the independent ticket? What we need to look at is a person's qualifications — knowing how to communicate with people and having the knowledge in financing and office procedure.

Shirley Hall, I know, would meet these qualifications and learning ability that goes along with the position as Jerome County treasurer.

Our community needs a person like Shirley Hall to fill this office.

House comes through to defeat aid cuts

All retired citizens from the state of Idaho receiving or applying for Social Security or Medicare should take several minutes and read the following letter.

Four opponents up for re-election to the United States Senate put their efforts into slashing Social Security and Medicare. Idaho Sen. Steve Symms just happens to be one of those four. Should Symms return to the Senate, retired Idaho citizens get another chopping at their benefits, for six more years in fact. A less-known chairman of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security says that Symms voted a shocking 100 percent of the time to cut Social Security. Senators from Alabama, Georgia, and South Dakota also vote to cut Social Security, but Symms just happens to be the worst of all. Is Steve Symms working for the rich or what?

These four men have made the United States Senate a battleground for Social Security and Medicare and will continue to do so.

Just last year, the United States Senate votes to eliminate Social Security Cost of Living Adjustment, also known as (COLA). Without National Committee support, the Senate's big plan would have cost the retired worker an average of $1,212 in Social Security benefits.

Symms heads the list and another six more years in the Senate voting against Social Security and Medicare could make it much more tough on retired citizens. But most of all, Symms represents the state of Idaho. Does this state really need this man as senator?

Our nation's lobbyists had met with the U.S. House of Representatives, asking for help pondering any chance to overturn Senate benefit cuts — and they came through. COLA was saved, and therefore, Medicare benefit cuts were also defeated.

If it wasn't for the National Committee's support on this matter, the U.S. Senate would have trampled on many retired citizens. On my behalf, our government definitely needs to make several changes, and one of those is to replace Steve Symms. Hopefully, all retired Idaho citizens have read this and, of course, all citizens have their own way of voting.

As for myself, I am far from retirement, but I know the man I have just mentioned in the above letter isn't getting my vote. TRAVIS JOHNSON

Use fees for dump are double taxation

I am writing in regard to your new county dump policy.

What, or who, gave the Jerome County commissioners the right to supercede the U.S. Constitution? Double taxation and taxation without representation — come on. Jerome County are being double taxed by supporting the dump through property taxes; and now they're being taxed again by use fees. Colonial Boston had a tea party for that type of action.

Secondly, when did the commissioners hold their public meetings on this taxation plan? Not even the people at the Courthouse know for sure when you meet. I found out it's during the day, when the people paying the taxes are working to earn the money you are trying to tax into extinction.

Come on, folks. Let's be fair to the people whose money you're spending, or election time could be very unpleasant.

Respect parking slots for use of handicapped

Respect handicapped parking places.

I'm writing this letter out of concern for the handicapped and their rights.

The other night, a friend and myself were sitting in the parking lot of a local grocery store. As we were sitting there visiting in our vehicle, we were appalled at the number of people who were parking in the handicapped parking spaces, but were very obviously not handicapped. In the 20 minutes we sat there, the spaces were taken up by non-handicapped people and there were three different cars that came in and needed them, but had to park elsewhere.

For those people who are doing this — you know who you are. I'm asking you to please remember the next time you go to park in a handicapped zone — don't. Thank God that you have got two good legs and are in good health. Please walk those few extra steps and leave the space for the people who are less fortunate than you and I. KAREN WEBB Twin Falls

Deny all intolerance a place to flourish

I am so grateful for the editorial Friday, Oct. 17, on the Aryan Nations (Nazis) church. May I paraphrase it a bit?

... the actions of people (or churches) who ultimately preach violence (or hate) to others based on religious beliefs should be monitored with diligence.

"We must vigorously defend, and be bold in our defense, religious freedoms and the rights of others."

... pressure on hate groups must be maintained."

I recall a few years ago, when the Saints Alive were welcomed in area churches as guests and gave their message to overflow crowds of worshippers.

How sorry I felt for my Mormon friends. They surely went through a sickening time.

"When any sad little band of bigots gather" to attack those who are different from themselves, whether by birth or by choice, let us remember their actions represent hatred and intolerance. Let us reaffirm the intent of Magic Valley (what a beautiful name!) and our beloved country, America, as places which respect the rights of others. Let us not create a climate in which these organisms (organizations) can flourish. Peace. MARIA WOOD

Organization labeled a disgrace to Idaho

In regard to the "Aryan Nations" cross burning: Anyone who goes around burning crosses are rowing with one oar.

And who are you to say only the whites should rule this country? Are your ancestors of Indian descent? If not, you should go back to where your ancestors came from and leave our country be. You are a disgrace to our state of Idaho, and I wouldn't wish you on another state. You are surely not welcome in heaven, so there is only one place left for you! Bye now! ALICE TRACY Twin Falls

HOMES

Q. How many homes did Jesus Christ own?
A. At least two, the Bible scholars believe.

That Mark Twain was the first author to submit a typewritten novel manuscript to a publisher has been reported. It was typed on a Remington he'd bought for $125. What Twain eventually did with that pioneer typewriter is not widely known. Traded it for a $12 saddle.

Q. Where was this country's first cable car line?
A. New York City's Greenwich Village. On a three-block overhead run. It couldn't turn a profit, so folded.

If your family is of the typical American variety, you spend about 15 percent of your disposable income on housing and save less than 6 percent. In Japan, it's the vice versa — 5 percent on housing, 21 percent into savings.

Q. Wasn't the name "Cosa Nostra" coined by the FBI's J. Edgar Hoover?
A. Because of him. He'd long insisted there was no such organization as the Mafia. When facts proved him wrong, the Cosa Nostra name was devised so he could save face.

Don't stand downwind from a fire of poison ivy. The smoke can give you a rash.

By 1935, it was still out back, but you used a driveway beside the house. By 1960, it was attached to the house up front, next to the kitchen. Typically, typically.

Court to rule on 'Gay Olympics' name

Tuesday, October 21, 1986 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-7

Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said Monday it will decide whether Olympic officials may bar a homosexual rights group from using "Gay Olympics" as the name of an athletic competition that it sponsors.

In a case from San Francisco, the justices will study whether the United States Olympic Committee and the International Olympic Committee have exclusive trademark control over the term Olympic.

In other action, the high court: —Rejected a challenge to the Reagan administration's action in January 1984, with the support of Congress, to establish full diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

—Agreed to decide whether the free speech rights of a public clerk-tylist in Houston were violated when she was fired for saying she hoped someone assassinated President Reagan.

—Refused to revive a Paducah, Ky., ordinance declaring any business a public nuisance if it engages primarily in selling or showing obscene material.

—Agreed to decide in an Oklahoma case whether railroads may be forced to pay propo-tionally higher state property taxes than other businesses.

—Refused to shield the daughter of former Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos from imprisonment for refusing to cooperate in a federal investigation of alleged bribery of Philippine officials by U.S. arms dealers.

—Agreed to examine the public's right of access to private beachfront property in California.

The Olympics case concerns a gay rights group called San Francisco Arts and Athletics which organized the first "Gay Olympics" in 1982, prompting Olympic officials to file a lawsuit. A federal judge ordered the group to drop the word "Olympic" from the title of its quadrennial sports competition. The organization called the second such event Gay Games II when 3,500 athletes gathered last August in San Francisco. The next competition is planned for 1990.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in January that the Amateur Sports Act of 1978 gives the U.S. Olympic Committee exclusive control over commercial use of the term Olympic and related symbols in the United States.

The appeals court rejected the gay group's arguments that the law is intended solely to prevent groups unaffiliated with the Olympics from deceptively claiming Olympic sponsorship.

San Francisco Arts and Athletics group, which is not affiliated with the Olympics, makes no such claim, but said it is a victim of unconstitutional discrimination because many other groups not connected with the Olympics use the term without legal challenge.

"There are competitions throughout the United States called Olympics for firefighters, drinkers of alcohol, senior citizens, crab cookers, chili makers, baby diaperers, and Armenians, to name a few," lawyers for the gay rights group said.

One question posed by the case is whether the U.S. Olympic Committee, a private group that receives federal aid, is a government entity capable of violating someone's constitutional rights.

The appeals court said the committee is not acting in place of the government and therefore cannot be sued for rights violations.

Demand brisk for U.S. gold coins

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first general-circulation U.S. gold coin to be minted in more than a half-century went on sale Monday with Treasury Department officials reporting a brisk demand for the American Eagle coins.

By the end of the day, officials at the U.S. Mint said they had processed orders for more than 320,000 ounces of gold with 24 of 25 primary dealers making requests for the new coins.

"The orders are coming in, the interest is definitely there," said Donna Pope, director of the U.S. Mint. "We hope to sell 2.2 million ounces of gold in the first year of the program, but if interest continues at the height that it is right now, that may be a conservative estimate."

The coins will have a face value of $50, $25, $10 and $5 but will sell for far more than that. The price will fluctuate, reflecting the price of gold. The coins will contain gold in amounts ranging from one-tenth of an ounce for the $5 coin up to a full ounce in the $50 gold piece.

Gold was selling in London for $425 an ounce on Monday.

The Mint is not selling coins directly to the public but is distributing the coins to 25 primary dealers around the world, who must place their orders in minimum amounts of 5,000 ounces. These dealers will resell the coins to a network of coin shops, precious metal dealers, brokerage firms, banks and savings and loans.

Officials estimated that the coins will begin showing up for sale to the public as early as Thursday and should be in widespread distribution by the end of the month.

In Atlanta, about 100 people turned out for a protest at Georgia Tech, which is engaged in various defense-related research projects.

"We expect that our researchers will proceed with this type of research in the firm conviction that their work will be broadly beneficial," said a statement from acting school president Henry C. Bourne Jr.

"The all-day demonstration included a 'die-in' and a 'pledge of allegiance to SDI.' There were no arrests and no rioting nor peaceful," said Tech spokeswoman Jill Sewell Rice.

There was a brief attempt to slow morning rush hour traffic, but that was halted by police.

In Washington, about 50 protesters chanted "We're the future, not the bomb!" outside the building that houses the main SDI offices and the U.S.-Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Officer Thomas Randolph said 27 were charged with disorderly conduct, but one was also charged with assaulting a police officer, a felony, police said.

Rangers search for cougar that mauled boy

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — Rangers and trappers fanned out Monday in a wilderness park to hunt a cougar that mauled a 6-year-old boy, the second attack on a child this year.

Ronald W. Caspers, Wilderness Regional Park, 60 miles southeast of Los Angeles, was evacuated Sunday and closed until Orange County's park department decides whether to reopen it, said park district supervisor Tony Gimbrone.

"The park is closed now, and we intend to leave it closed until we can formulate some sort of satisfactory operations plan," said parks and recreation director Hal Krizan.

A meeting with the state Department of Fish and Game and the county Department of Animal Control probably would be held within the next few days, he said.

"Our first priority is to find this cat," said Gimbrone.

Around noon Sunday, a cougar snatched a 6-year-old Justin Mellon from among several companions on a hiking trail, took his head in its jaws and tried to drag him away before being scared off by the Huntington Beach boy's knife-wielding father, who carried Justin to safety.

"As I was running back down the trail with him in my arms, he kept asking me, 'Am I going to live?'" said Timothy Mellon, 28. He said doctors told him his son "is going to be all right."

Justin underwent surgery Sunday for lacerations on the back of his head, arms, legs and chest and was listed in satisfactory condition Monday at Mission Community Hospital in Mission Viejo.

On March 23, Laura Michele Small, 5, of El Toro was mauled by a cougar in the same park. Her family has filed a $28 million lawsuit contending officials were negligent in not warning people adequately of the cougar dangers.

"I can't believe they would allow this to happen again," said Susan Small, Laura's mother. Gimbrone and biologists have said a combination of encroaching

Toxic red tide killing fish in Texas

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A toxic "red tide" that has killed millions of fish along Texas' Gulf Coast has begun to spread into Mexican waters and could linger until the end of the year if temperatures do not drop, officials said Monday.

Since the explosion of microscopic organisms appeared in late August near Galveston, officials in this city of 250,000 have "closed" beaches to swimmers, and the oyster harvest, which was scheduled to open Nov. 1, has been suspended from south of Galveston to the Mexican border.

Merchants complain that publicity about the red tide has hurt business and scared off tourists.

For now, authorities and businessmen are hoping for a cold front that will drop water temperatures to 60 degrees or lower, which may clear the red tide.

The water temperature has been in the upper 70s to the 80s, and a dip to 60 may not occur until mid-December or later, said Pat Patterson, a forecaster at the National Weather Service in Corpus Christi.

Hal Osburn, harvest program leader for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's marine laboratory in Rockport, said Monday the red tide was about 1 to 4 miles wide near Port O'Connor, to the Mexican border, a distance of about 170 miles.

"It could be up to 3,000 square miles of the Gulf of Mexico that has some red tide in it," Osburn said.

It has killed pinheads, hardheads, catfish, mullets and some large red fish, said Frank Judd, director of the Pan American University Coastal Studies Laboratory at South Padre Island.

The red tide has stabilized off the coast, he said, but officials are concerned that it will enter the Laguna Madre, a nursery for shrimp, oysters and other fish located between Port Isabel and South Padre Island.

"There's really nothing to prevent it from moving in there," Judd said. "It can change overnight."

Shamir sworn in as prime minister

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yitzhak Shamir, leader of Israel's right-wing Likud bloc, was sworn in Monday to replace Shimon Peres as prime minister and vowed to increase Jewish settlement of occupied Arab territories.

Shamir and his 24-member Cabinet took their oaths after the Knesset, or Parliament, debated for four hours and then gave Shamir an overwhelming 82-17 vote of confidence. There were three abstentions in the 120-member Parliament.

Under an unprecedented 1984 coalition agreement between Peres' left-leaning Labor Party and Shamir's Likud, Peres takes Shamir's previous job as 'foreign minister.

The 71-year-old Shamir said a "supreme priority" of his government would be to funnel funds into increased Jewish settlement of occupied Arab territories.

"The (national) economy will be based not only on solid economic principles, but also on the Zionist values which must be our guide, among them the supreme value of settlement throughout the Land of Israel," he told the Knesset as he presided over his new government.

Increased Jewish settlement "in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, where 1.4 million Palestinians live, could antagonize peace efforts with Jordan, Israel captured the West Bank from Jordan and Gaza from Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war.

Shamir said he favors peace talks with Jordan but refuses to accept Jordan's demand for an international peace conference. Both Jordan and Kuwait on Monday repeated calls for a peace conference to be attended by the permanent members of the U.N. Security Council and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"No international forum can serve as a substitute for direct negotiations," Shamir said. "We will not be able to achieve peace without free, direct, face-to-face discussion."

He reiterated Israel's rejection of the PLO as a negotiating partner, denouncing it as a terrorist group. "PLO terrorism once again raised its murderous head," he said, referring to a grenade attack in Jerusalem last Wednesday in which one Israeli was killed and 89 others were wounded. Israel has said that it captured three Palestinians responsible for the attack and that they were acting on orders from the PLO.

Shamir also said, "We will prevent the (Palestinian) gangs from entrenching themselves in Lebanon and establishing bases there."

Members of Peres' Labor Party denounced Shamir's plans for expanding Jewish settlements, saying the money was needed in other areas.

"Growth of the Israeli economy is far more important than building more settlements," said Knesset member Rafi Edry.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger arrived by helicopter at this Scottish golfing resort on the eve of the two-day meeting that will debate the strategic future of NATO following the summit at which both sides offered huge nuclear arms cuts.

The basic fear is that withdrawal of U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles, whose deployment provoked protests by the anti-nuclear movements, would leave Western Europe in an inferior position to the Communist Warsaw Pact's larger conventional forces.

At a two-day meeting of defense ministers of the 16-nation NATO alliance starting Tuesday, the Europeans were to raise the issue with Weinberger.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany, perhaps the most worried of the Europeans, was in the United States and expected to spell out his concerns to President Reagan.

"The abolition of all nuclear weapons is a fantastic goal," Kohl's top security adviser, Horst Teltschik, said in an article published Monday in the mass-circulation newspaper Bild.

"But it could make war in Europe more likely again as the considerable superiority of the Soviet Union in the conventional field persists. Disarmament must not be allowed to burden the partners in the Western alliance, but rather it must strengthen their security," Teltschik wrote.

In NATO headquarters in Brussels, the alliance's deputy supreme commander, Gen. Hans-Joachim Mack, complained last week that Washington did not seem to have considered the "strategic implications" of the deal.

Fall storm hits Europe, kills 4
LONDON (AP) — Fall storms packing winds of up to 94 mph churned across Western Europe on Monday, killing at least four people, toppling trees "like dominoes" and bringing the first snowfall of the season to the Swiss Alps.

British police said an elderly man was killed when a 50-foot poplar tree fell on his car in Eatham, south London. Minutes later, sales administrator Jennifer Welsh, 37, was killed when a tree crushed her car at Morden, several miles to the west. Several other motorists sustained broken limbs and other injuries when trees and branches smashed into their vehicles, police said.

The storm, accompanied by torrential rains, toppled more than 20 trees in London and south England.

Controversy persists over quake aid

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A leading businessman on Monday accused the government of needlessly delaying the distribution of international aid to the thousands of people left homeless and hungry by the Oct. 10 earthquake.

Carlos Borja, president of the National Association of Private Enterprise, said corruption, bureaucracy and politics had slowed the distribution of food, shelter and other aid to quake victims in this Central American capital.

Julio Rey Préndes, minister of communications, said the official death count had reached 1,100 Monday and could go as high as 1,500 when the last of the victims are recovered from mudslides, wrecked buildings and shattered homes. The quake injured more than 8,000 people and left an estimated 300,000 homeless.

"What has happened is that this national tragedy has been converted into a political situation by the government," Borja told The Associated Press in an interview.

Aquilino Duarte, minister of agriculture and a member of the government's National Emergency Committee, said there still were some distribution problems because of the magnitude of the quake, which severely damaged several areas of the capital. But he denied they were serious.

"We still have some organizational problems in the affected areas," said Duarte, who is not related to President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Duarte to investigate use of base for Contras

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte will have to investigate possible involvement by El Salvador's military in supplying rebels fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua, an aide said Monday.

"The president is in a difficult position," said the aide, who insisted on anonymity because of the matter's sensitivity. "He asked the chiefs of staff and they said the military was not involved."

Duarte said recently that claims of his government's involvement with the Contra rebels were "absolutely false." The military high command issued a statement denying any of its installations were used as logistical support bases for Nicaraguan guerrillas.

"He maintained what the military said," the presidential aide said Monday. "It will be difficult to back off. We will have to act, to investigate, and that is very difficult at this moment."

The military, which ruled El Salvador until 1979, still has a strong behind-the-scenes role in running the country. Previous attempts by Duarte's government to probe controversial issues involving the military have been fruitless.

For three years, there have been rumors and reports that the government and military gave tacit consent to Contra use of facilities at the Ilopango air base on San Salvador's outskirts. Supplies were reported stored at a base warehouse and flown to Contra camps.

Salvadoran military and U.S. officials have confirmed the Contra ties in recent interviews.

Europeans concerned over arms removal

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP) — NATO defense ministers gathered Monday at this golf resort to confront the Americans about a near-deal at the Reykjavik summit that raised concern about a Europe at the mercy of superior Soviet conventional forces.

President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev almost reached agreement to remove medium-range missiles from Europe, a prospect that caused complaints from some NATO generals and more discreet grumbles from politicians worried about Western European security.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger arrived by helicopter at this Scottish golfing resort on the eve of the two-day meeting that will debate the strategic future of NATO following the summit at which both sides offered huge nuclear arms cuts.

Day care licensing debate rekindled before candidates

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Day care operators rekindled the debate over day care licensing on Monday before an audience of seven candidates for state Legislature.

"We're trying to call attention to the problem before it becomes a major crisis," said Pat Verstraete, a day care operator. "And I think last year's Legislature was guilty of gross neglect when it didn't pass minimum standards."

Proposed day care licensing never got out of the House Health and Welfare Committee during the 1986 Legislature, and similar legislation was defeated in the Senate. It was the third straight year day care legislation has been introduced and defeated.

Discussion at Monday's public forum, attended by candidates, government officials and a dozen day care operators, centered around what constituted "minimum standards" for day care operators, and who would be the regulating agency.

The forum was designed to "put the candidates unmistakably on the record" on day care licensing, and most candidates agreed some type of legislation was needed.

Attending were incumbent Sen. Laird Noh, D-Kimberly, and his opponent, Donald McMurrin, an independent, Republican Ron Black, who is also a day care operator and has pushed for legislation in the past, and his opponent, Democrat Sally Miller Gulick; Republican Celia Folsing and Democrat Gary Nielsen, both running for House District 23B; and Republican Dr. Russell Newcomb, who is unemployed for House seat 23C.

Verstraete told the group legislation was necessary because "providers are on the line."

She said responsible day care operators constantly hear horror stories of children who are unwanted, children who receive little or no nutritious food, and children who receive no instruction and are entertained solely by watching television all day.

"We have a cloud hanging over our profession," she said.

She said the state day care association supports mandatory, statewide regulations, "and we want it to be a priority."

Also attending were Willard Abbott, regional director for the Department of Health and Welfare, Gerald Hurst, director of the South Central District Health Department, Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Mann and Marvin Gregerson, with the Bureau of Licensing.

All four government officials made a pitch for both funding and caution legislation is passed.

Hurst warned day care operators to be careful about what kind of legislation they want introduced.

"You better be considering specific regulations and what kind of regulations you want enforced," he said. "For example, what constitutes a day-care center? Is the child or 12?"

Hurst said the Health Department's board favored statewide regulations, and the state has to provide total funding.

"Fees from operators won't take care of it," he said. "I think the state, and cities and counties are going to have to contribute."

Abbott said the Department of Health and Welfare is the only state agency that has a day care licensing program, but on a voluntary basis. If licensing becomes mandatory, he estimated it would cost between $50,000-$70,000 for each of the state's seven regions to administer the program.

"And that's a barebones program," Abbott said. "We'd have to hire at least two full-time positions to do it."

Candidate McMurrin questioned Abbott on how many complaints he received against day care homes.

Abbott said his agency last year received 18 child abuse or child neglect complaints against day care operators, and only two were valid. Of those complaints, one license was pulled, but no one was prosecuted.

Random drug testing wins approval at CSI

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Athletes at the College of Southern Idaho will now be randomly tested for illegal drug use.

CSI board members Monday unanimously approved of the testing, which is designed to detect traces of marijuana, cocaine or amphetamine consumption through traces found in the athlete's urine.

One out of five athletes competing in all inter-collegiate sports will be tested annually, or if the coach suspects a problem, said CSI President Gerald Meyerhoeffer.

But Meyerhoeffer and board members said the testing probably wouldn't affect current or future athletes, because of recruiting at CSI.

"We just haven't gone after kids that have had problems," said Board Chairman Letoy Craig. He added that asking athletes to voluntarily submit to the testing tells them what is expected at CSI.

Craig said the policy tells incoming athletes: "We don't want a problem — let's solve it ahead of time."

Meyerhoeffer said men's basketball Coach Fred Trenkle began telling recruiting prospects last July about the possibility of future testing.

Each positive response will be verified at a second lab. Board Trustee Dr. Thad Scholes said substances such as over-the-counter drugs that elicit an incorrect test response should be ruled out when the test is given.

"The kids should provide information on all the drugs they are taking to prevent a false positive," Scholes said.

Meyerhoeffer said that after a single positive test the athlete will be placed in a drug-counseling program and then tested regularly. After testing positive on two occasions, an athlete will be removed from the team.

Disciplinary action taken under this policy will not be made public, Meyerhoeffer said.

Also during the meeting, Meyerhoeffer notified the board of President Ronald Reagan's tentatively scheduled appearance at CSI Oct. 31. He said Reagan is expected to speak at the Exposition Center and take part in events around the campus.

"It is an honor for us, and we're looking forward to having him on campus," Meyerhoeffer said.

In other business, the board approved a plan for reserved seating at basketball games. Reserved-season tickets, sold for $100 each, will be located in the lower west side of the gym. Regular season tickets cost $40 each.

The reserved-seating agreement was reached after meetings of the board and the Golden Eagle booster club. The plan had been opposed by former Student Body President Fred Barber, who criticized the higher cost of the tickets.

A limit of six tickets per order may be requested through the CSI business office and a lottery will be held to assign the seats. The drawing is set for Nov. 6 at 5 p.m. in the CSI Eagles' Nest in the Taylor Administration Building.

The first regular-season basketball game is set for Nov. 17.

Council accepts liability accord

School gyms open to basketball teams

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With the signing of a liability agreement by the Twin Falls City Council on Monday, the city's youth basketball teams soon may be hitting the courts again.

The agreement between the city and the Twin Falls School District clarifies who is responsible for claims or lawsuits arising from use of the other's property.

The School District originally sought an agreement with the city because the city couldn't provide proof of insurance coverage, which is what the School District requires from other groups using its property.

The city had lost its private insurance coverage months before and had started a self-insurance program.

Without insurance, or an agreement, the city was prohibited this month from using school facilities, such as gymnasiums, for its recreation programs. As a result, about 30 teams of the Twin Falls Knightho basketball league were banned from beginning Oct. 4, the date of their first practice game.

After weeks of negotiating, officials of the city and School District agreed Friday on a mutually acceptable agreement.

In the pact, the city agrees to defend the School District in lawsuits or claims brought against the district arising from the city's use of school property.

The School District Board, which is expected to approve the agreement this week, agrees to do the same for the city for lawsuits or claims arising from the School District's use of city property.

The parties also agree to reimburse the other for any judgment rendered against them related to lawsuits over use of the other's property. For example, if the city has to pay an judgment in a lawsuit arising from the school's use of city property, the School District would compensate the city for any of its losses — and vice versa.

The one-year agreement, which would cover all city recreation programs, also says "each party will be responsible for their own property when it comes to claims or

President's visit set on Oct. 31

By JANE ROBISON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Barring unforeseen circumstances, President Ronald Reagan will be in Twin Falls on Oct. 31, sometime between noon and 5 p.m., at a rally to campaign for Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, Republican campaign officials confirmed on Monday.

The White House will not officially confirm the president's visit until two to three days before, but for security reasons and because plans could change.

However, on Monday, for the first time Symms, who is locked in a tight race with Democratic Gov. John Evans, confirmed the likely prospect that Reagan will be in Twin Falls next week.

Symms, campaigning to oust Evans, told a school gathering that Reagan will be in Twin Falls on his behalf.

Republican candidates, including Lt. Gov. David Leroy, who is running for the 2nd Congressional District seat, also will be introduced at the rally.

Local Republicans helping to prepare for the event are planning for about 3,000 people. The free rally will be held at the Expo Center at the College of Southern Idaho.

Twin Falls is the only city in Idaho scheduled for the president's trip. Idaho Falls had also been mentioned earlier. But Al Henderson, field representative for Symms' staff, said Reagan will only be in Twin Falls.

"Blue-and-white invitations for the 'Idaho Victory Rally' have been printed, and a few have been mailed."

The invitations read: "Ronald Reagan requests the pleasure of your company at the Presidential Tribute to U.S. Senator Steve Symms."

Although the rally will be free, advance reservations are required for security reasons.

While the rally will not be a fund-raiser, fund-raising activities are planned to help pay for the president's trip, because it is a campaign event. Tentative plans call for both a photo session with the president for people who paid $250, and a $100-a-table luncheon.

Henderson said local Republicans need 400-500 volunteers to help with activities such as ushering and parking. Fifty have signed up so far. People who want to volunteer must sign up at Republican Headquarters in downtown Twin Falls and send an application for a security check.

Vice President George Bush will be in Boise briefly the previous day to campaign for Symms.

State moves to block scam in farm loan fees

By The Associated Press
and The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Attorney General's Office says it has filed suit against two individuals and a Washington, D.C., corporation, alleging they have violated state laws by soliciting retainers up to $15,000 for arranging low-interest loans for Idaho farmers.

The Attorney General's Office Monday also obtained a temporary restraining order, lasting until Nov. 3, against AWA Financial Services and Securities Ltd. of Venice, Fla.

Attorney General Jim Jones said Monday that a civil lawsuit was filed Friday in 4th District Court against Ken Powers, Joseph Welch and AWA Financial Services, and Securities Co. Ltd. It alleges violations of the state's Consumer Protection Act.

Jones said it violates Idaho law to charge a loan broker fee prior to obtaining a loan commitment or producing loan money, except under certain limited circumstances.

Jones said the complaint charges that Powers, a resident of Venice, Fla., has made misrepresentations regarding his business and his ability to provide low-interest loans to farmers. He also has falsely stated that AWA Financial Services and Securities, Washington, D.C., has been checked out and approved by the FBI, Jones said.

The complaint alleges that the defendants have misrepresented that they can provide loans to farmers of $1 million or more at interest rates of 3 to 5 percent. Jones said the lawsuit asks 4th District Court to issue an order preventing Powers and the other defendants from conducting business in Idaho and to make restitution to those who have paid retainers of $15,000 or more.

Ken Thornberg, executive director of the FBI, Jones said.

Growers discovering plenty of sugar in Idaho beet harvest

The Associated Press

POCATELLO — The Magic and Treasure valleys are living up to their names this year, as far as sugar beet growers are concerned.

The sugar beet harvest in Minidoka and Cassia counties, the location of the heaviest concentrations of sugar beet fields, has been going strong.

Bill Hazen, Twin Falls County extension agent, said the harvest there is doing well.

"The weather is absolutely perfect," he reported — cold nights and warm days; just what for high sugar content. He said that past several months even though the weather has been fluctuating, current grower prices are around $36 per ton, with yields, but higher sugar content as well.

Ray Larsen, Amalgamated Sugar assistant vice president for agriculture, confirmed that yield appears to be good this year, but questioned whether sugar content would be as high as last year.

Unlike many other crops, sugar beets are grown on a contract basis. Amalgamated is the only buyer in Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Utah. Growers are paid on a tonnage basis, with premiums or discounts based on sugar content.

Larsen said domestic prices, the basis for growers' prices, have been stable over the past several months even though the world market has been fluctuating. Current grower prices are around $36 per ton, with premiums and discounts averaging $2.78 per percentage point above or below 15.5 percent sugar content.

Bob Ohlenschlaeger is extension agent in Jerome County, where sugar beets rank behind potatoes, alfalfa hay and beans as a major crop. He said the high quality of this year's beets is surprising, considering the hot weather in June and August.

Yield is up to 15 to 16 percent to about 25 tons per-acre, with at least one farmer reporting a yield on early beets of 36 tons to the acre, he said.

Larsen said the harvest is about one-third complete, and will be finished by the second week of November. The Magic Valley has 102,000 acres of sugar beets, and the Treasure Valley, including 10,000 acres in Malheur County, Ore., another 68,000 acres.

Amalgamated Sugar contracts all these beets. The company introduced early beets in the Magic Valley four years ago to spread out the harvest. It introduced early beets in the Treasure Valley this year, leading to an increase in acreage there of about 5,000 acres.

Aside from that, Larsen said, the acreage has been stable over the last few years and will continue to be so despite the long list of farm bills on waiting lists for beet allotments, complete, and will be finished by the second

While no sugar beets are yet contracted for the next year, Larsen said allotments for 1987 are already "pretty well lined up."

The sugar beet contracts are also "participating" contracts, meaning growers share in the profits and losses that result from fluctuating markets. The price they get for their crop is tied to the price Amalgamated gets for sugar. There have been few complaints from growers, Larsen says, despite the fact that Amalgamated is the only buyer in the Northwest.

"The price is determined by the open market," he says. "And growers' associations audit the company's books annually."

13 indicted in nuclear power plant price-fixing scheme

SEATTLE (AP) — Seven people and six corporations were indicted Monday on federal charges of bilking millions of dollars in a price fixing scheme involving pipe for nuclear power plants.

U.S. Attorney Gene Anderson, FBI special agent-in-charge Don Tokunaga and Internal Revenue Service district director Robert Mirsberger said at a news conference that they had uncovered a "pervasive and far-flung conspiracy."

The scheme allegedly bilked more than $500,000 from the Washington Public Power Supply System alone on contracts for pipe used in WPPSS plants Nos. 1 and 4, they said.

A number of other nuclear power plant projects across the country were defrauded of millions in the same conspiracy, the authorities said.

The companies named in the indictments were Benjamin F. Shaw Co., Laurens, S.C.; Standard Pipe & Supply Co., Bala-Cynwyd, Pa.; Capitol Pipe & Steel Products, Bala-Cynwyd, Pa.; Louis P. Genuis Inc., Deptford, N.J.; Ladish Co., Cudahy, Wis.; and Guyon Alloys Inc., Wayne, Pa.

A federal grand jury, part of a two-year inquiry, has been investigating corruption that may have raised the cost of power plants by millions of dollars around the country over the last decade, the Seattle Times reported Sunday.

It said the investigation focused in part on the Shaw company, a major contractor for the WPPSS plants at the Hanford nuclear reservation in southeastern Washington. WPPSS is a cooperative utility construction agency.

Though Shaw's contract to supply pipe for the Unit 1 and 4 reactors was awarded for $25.7 million, WPPSS ended up paying $33.1 million by the time construction was halted in 1982.

WPPSS Plant No. 1 has been mothballed and No. 4 has been terminated.

Overruns plagued all five WPPSS nuclear power plant projects.

Pipe for the No. 2 plant, bid at $59 million, wound up costing more than $600 million. That is the only WPPSS project that has been completed, but the five-year statute of limitations for that work has expired, so it is outside the range of the investigation.

Shaw's practices are also being questioned elsewhere. Documents filed by the parent company, Blount Inc. of Montgomery, Ala., show Shaw also is being investigated by a federal grand jury in Wilmington, Del., the Times reported.

Shaw's former president, Gerald D. Proffitt, went on trial Oct. 13 in Camden, N.J., on charges of bribery, mail fraud and crossing state lines to commit a federal crime. That case stems from work at the Indian River power plant.

Proffitt is accused of paying kickbacks to Timothy W. McCuen, former chief purchasing agent for United Engineers & Constructors, the Philadelphia architectural and engineering company that oversaw construction of WPPSS 1 and 4.

McCuen pleaded guilty two years ago to accepting kickbacks on WPPSS and other power plant work.

Hot summer romance meets cool end

DEAR ABBY: I met a really neat guy at the beginning of the summer. (We're both 20.) We were immediately attracted to each other and spent every moment we could together — laughing, talking and having fun. I hadn't had such a fulfilling relationship with a guy in years, and I knew his feelings were as strong as mine.

He went away to college, and we agreed to phone when we could afford it and to write often.

To date I have written five very long letters and called him six times, but he has made no effort to contact me. When I called him, he didn't seem the least bit excited and acted like he was in a hurry to get off the phone. He said he'd call me back that night, but he never did. I was in tears.

I called him the next day to find out what was wrong, and he said, "Nothing, but didn't give me a reason why he didn't call back. (Again he was in a hurry.) Everything was wonderful before he left. I can't understand his lack of communication. This isn't the same guy who left in August. Or is it?"

IN THE DARK IN IOWA
DEAR IN: Yes, it's the same guy, but his feelings have changed. Don't hassle him. If you put him on the spot, he'll be forced to tell you it was just a summer romance. (So far he hasn't had the guts.) Save your pride and forget him. What was, was. This happens to every young woman, at least once. My heart aches for you.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I never in a million years thought I'd be writing to you, let alone thanking you for possibly saving my life, but here goes:

You had a piece in your column (Vancouver Province) warning readers that old grenades, shells and other potentially explosive war souvenirs could possibly still be dangerous and to call their local police department and ask that they be picked up and disposed of properly.

Well, years ago we inherited a "brassy looking" object, heavy as a dumbbell, about a foot long — just the thing to use as a doorstop! After reading your column I recalled that my doorstop was an old cannon shell, so on the chance that it could be dangerous, I called the authorities and had it removed.

To make a long story short, the shell was taken to the Explosive Ordnance Disposal Unit at a Canadian Army base and was identified as a 57mm anti-tank cannon shell — the type used by the Allied Forces in World War II. The shell was wisely taken to a gravel pit and exploded by remote control. We later learned that the TNT charge in that shell had a killing radius of 23 meters or 76 feet!

Another thing about TNT, the older it gets, the more skittish it becomes. The slightest jar may set it off! Thanks, Abby!

JEAN M. BUZAN GRATEFUL CANADIAN

DEAR JEAN: Some folks say they get a charge out of my column, but this was really dynamite!

DEAR ABBY: You have had several letters about junk mail, so I thought you might get a chuckle out of the way my mother handled hers.

Mother, who has been a widow since 1953, had been receiving letters from a credit card corporation addressed to her late husband (who had never lived at her current address), congratulating him on how well he had managed his finances over the last few years and inviting him to apply for their "gold card."

After discarding several of these letters, Mother received another one. This time she decided to fill out the attached application and return it.

She gave Dad's full name and date of birth. For "Current address?" she wrote "Highland Memorial Cemetery." For "How long at that address?" "33 years." "Current employer?" "St. Peter." On the line designated for signature of applicant, she wrote, "Unobtainable." Former Maryland players escape charges

By DAVID GINSBURG
The Associated Press

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. — A Prince George's County circuit judge Monday dismissed charges against two men and scheduled trial for a third in connection with the cocaine-induced death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias.

Judge James Rea, at the request of state attorney Arthur Marshall, dismissed possession of cocaine and obstruction of justice charges against David Gregg and Terry Long, who were with Bias when he died of cocaine intoxication June 19.

But the judge refused to dismiss the case against Brian Lee Tribble, who also was with Bias the morning he collapsed in a college dormitory room. The judge set Nov. 17 as the trial date for Tribble.

Tribble is accused of supplying Bias with the cocaine that killed him, and is charged with possession of cocaine, possession with intent to distribute cocaine, distribution of cocaine and possession of PCP.

At a pretrial hearing, the prosecutor said, Long and Gregg, former teammates of Bias, "have promised to continue to cooperate with the state and assist us in our investigation."

After the charges against Long and Gregg were dropped, Tribble's attorney, Thomas

Morrow, asked for "dismissal of charges" against his client because of "unfair, prejudicial publicity" generated by Marshall, who Mary O'Brien almost daily talked to the media about the grand jury proceedings.

Rea denied the motion, saying, "Even if there was some judicial prosecutorial abuse, it is not enough to reach a level that an indictment should be dropped."

Long and Gregg are expected to testify in Tribble's trial, but both Marshall and their lawyer, Alan Goldstein, denied that charges were dropped against them as part of a plea bargain.

"For the record, no deal has been consummated," Marshall told the judge. After the hearing, Goldstein said there had been Boston Celtics collapsed after ingesting an "unusually pure form of cocaine," Tribble clients had a long discussion with Marshall, last Thursday, just hours before the players room about 6:30 that morning broke months of silence and testified before the grand jury.

Long and Gregg refused to comment.

"They (Long and Gregg) will honor all subpoenas in the case, whether they come from the state or the defense," Goldstein initial said.

Morrow said last week that his client would be exonerated of all charges against him if Long and Gregg tell the truth.

Tribble, Gregg and Long were with Bias After Bias collapsed for the final time, Long WUSA-TV and WRCB-TV in Washington reported that on Thursday Gregg and Long told the grand jury that Bias suffered three seizures in the early hours of June 19. They also said Bias regained consciousness after the two seizures, but remained unconscious after the third attack.

It also was reported by the television stations that the players said that Tribble brought a "mound" of cocaine into the room after Bias collapsed for the final time, Long

Jets trounce Broncos

By BARRY WILNER
The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Ken O'Brien threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to Wesley Walker and an unyielding New York defense shut down Denver's high-scoring offense as the Jets defeated the previously unbeaten Broncos 22-10 in an NFL game Monday night.

O'Brien, who missed New York's last game against New England with a knee injury, came on late in the second period after Pat Ryan was sacked by Denver's Karl Mecklenburg. On his second play, O'Brien found Walker speeding down the right sideline behind safety Dennis Smith for the touchdown that made it 20-0.

By then the Jet defense had established its dominance. Ranked fourth in the NFL against the rush — Denver led the league — the Jets never allowed the Broncos to get moving.

They pressured quarterback John Elway, sacking him five times, allowed only 34 yards on the ground and controlled Denver's passing attack. Even though the Jets ranked next-to-last in pass defense entering the game, the Broncos came into the seventh weekend of the season with the league's most productive offense with 179 points.

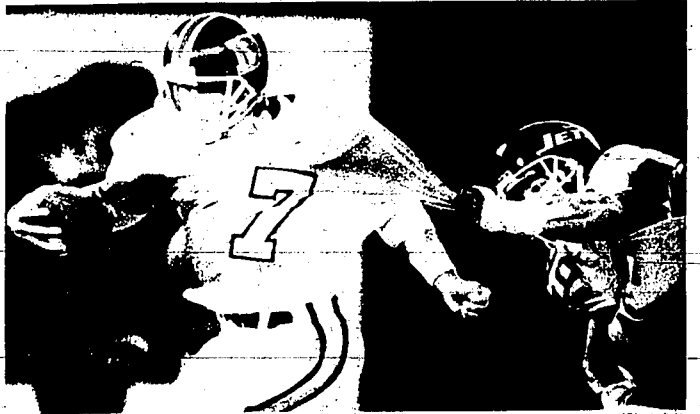

Although it spluttered in the second half, the Jets offense already had put the game out of reach. Led by Ryan, the Jets put together time-consuming marches of 65, 56 and 49 yards in the first half.

Pat Lesby kicked field goals of 27 and 25 yards, giving him 22 consecutive successful kicks, one short of the NFL record set by Washington's Mark Moseley.

Johnny Hector ran one yard for a touchdown — to account for New York's other touchdown. It was Hector's seventh of the season, tying him for the NFL lead with New England receiver Stanley Morgan.

With 30 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter, the Jets led 22-10.

'Underdog' Red Sox set to resume Series

By JOHN NELSON
The Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox, coming home after sweeping the first two games of the World Series in New York, are tired of outsiders calling them outsiders.

"We don't pay any attention," American League batting champion Wade Boggs of the Red Sox said. "We were picked to finish fifth coming out of spring training. Then they picked us to fold after the All-Star break; and then we were supposed to fold when we started playing in our division."

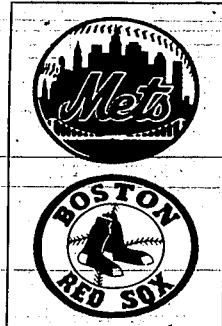

"We were supposed to lose the playoffs, and then we were supposed to lose the World Series. So what's next?"

The Red Sox beat the heavily favored Mets 1-0 and 9-2 in the first two games of the Series at Shea Stadium. Only one team, last year's Kansas City Royals, has come back to win a Series after losing the first two games at home.

Losing two at home and then going to the other ballpark is rough," Mets pitcher Ron Darling said. "We were pretty down after losing the second game, but we can turn it on if we have to, and we have to."

The third game of the best-of-seven Series will be played tonight at Fenway Park, with Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 16-10, going for Boston against Mets left-hander Bob Ojeda, 18-3, who was traded by the Red Sox to New York last November. Darling will come back on three days of rest to pitch Game 4.

Boston Manager John McNamara announced Monday that right-handed Al Nipper, 10-12 during the regular season, will start Game 4 for the Red Sox. Nipper was bypassed during previous postseason play because the Red Sox went to a three-man rotation.

"Bruce Hurst, if there is a Game 5, will pitch," McNamara said. "Then it will be Roger Clemens in the sixth game and Dennis O'Leary (Boyd) in the seventh."

While the Red Sox are aware they were considered underdogs, Boggs said the appellation never fit.

"Sure, we've been slighted," Boggs said Monday as the club prepared to work out. "And here we are two up in the World Series. Something's wrong. Somebody doesn't know too much about baseball, or we've fooled everybody."

"Last Vegas can put the odds up on the home arm sticking 'em," said Boggs, who hit .357 during the season and had two doubles in Sunday's victory. "The odds don't hit or field or tell you how much heart a team has."

No team ever has lost the first three games and come back to win a seven-game series. The Mets realize the seriousness of the situation but do not consider it hopeless.

"It's the same situation as Kansas City last year," Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez said. "So we know it can be done. These two games have been uncharacteristic of us."

The Mets' offensive problems had Manager Davey Johnson worried enough to make some lineup changes in Game 2, but not enough to hold a "workout on Monday; an off day. The off day without a workout followed a pattern the Mets set during the National League playoffs."

"The club is a little tired, as our performance on the field has shown," Mets pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre said, when asked why the workout was cancelled. "But I think the real reason was for all of us, coaches and players, to evaluate our position, to think about what we need to do."

Stottlemyre said the Mets were familiar with Fenway Park from an exhibition game they played here Sept. 4.

Sunday night, Johnson replaced third baseman Ray Knight with Howard Johnson and left fielder Mookie Wilson with Danny Heep, either of whom could be the designated hitter Tuesday night against Boyd. Johnson went 0-for-4, although he hit one to the wall in right field in the fourth inning, and Heep was 0-for-2 with a walk.

Rice catches school mark, top Big Sky player honors

The Associated Press

BOISE — Record-setting wide receiver Mike Rice, who grabbed four touchdown passes Saturday in Montana's 38-31 victory over Idaho State, is the Big Sky Conference's football player of the week.

Linebacker Matt Mickelwright of Montana State and Scott Lommort of Nevada-Reno were named the league's defensive players of the week, after helping their teams to Big Sky victories.

Rice, a 6-0, 195-pound senior from Twin Falls, helped Montana to a 38-31 come-from-behind victory over Idaho State to give the Grizzlies their first Big Sky victory of the 1986 season. He had 12 receptions for 150 yards and his four TD catches were a school record. Rice also had four punt returns for 28 yards.

Mickelwright, a 6-3, 235-pound sophomore from West Yellowstone, Mont., led the Montana State defense to a 27-19 victory over Northern Arizona to help snap a three-game Bobcat losing streak. He had nine tackles, including seven Nev., guided the Nevada-Reno defense to a 17-13 decision over Idaho to keep the Wolf Pack unbeaten at 7-0 this season and 3-0 in Big Sky play. He was in on 16 tackles, including six unassisted stops and also had a pass deflection as Nevada-Reno held the Vandals to 274 yards in total offense. That was 192 yards below Idaho's average heading into the game.

Others nominated for the weekly awards included Boise State flanker Eric Andrade and linebacker Rex Walters; Idaho linebacker Tom Hennessey; Idaho State quarterback Gino Mariani and free safety Don Davis; Montana defensive end Pat Foster; Montana State wide receiver Kelly Davis; Nevada-Reno offensive tackle Bob Brown; Northern Arizona defensive end Tom Gibson and Weber State tight end Calvin Hampton.

Girls win their places on Buhl 8th grade football team

By TERESA Z. TAYLOR
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Only 20 years ago girls who went out for the cheering squad were regarded as terribly athletic — they didn't even consider the possibility of being on the team they were cheering for.

Times have changed.

When you watch the Buhl eighth-grade football team play its next game, look for No. 38 and No. 29.

Monique Gauthier (38) and Kuffy Foss (29) are members of the football team, and the boys in the group think that it is just fine.

"The Buryel team laughed at us when they saw Gauthier in the lineup," said Foss. "They said, 'You got girls on your team.' Then we beat 'em 26-6 and they stopped laughing."

Calling it "cool" and "different," team members said Gauthier and Foss were treated no differently now. "We may have tried to hit them a little harder when they first started, said team members, but they took it and they are good enough to be on the team."

But why would a young girl want to play on the boys' football team?

"I went out for volleyball," said Gauthier, "but I would come out and watch these guys practice. It looked like a lot of fun, and I wanted to see if I could actually do it."

Gauthier, who played noseguard during the last five plays of the game against Buryel, admitted to being scared during her first real game. "But then I made contact, and it was fun," she said.

Both girls said their parents backed them — but admitted their mothers were concerned they might be hurt.

"My dad said if I thought I was big enough or had enough guts to go out there, he'd back me up," said Foss.

The girls' request to be on the team was given a lot of review and approved by the school board. With their parents' asking only that they be given a fair shot.

Coach Jim Armitage said the girls have done well. Initially, the boys treated them differently, he said, but now they're just part of the team.

Gauthier and Foss, who use separate dressing facilities when they travel to games, said their girlfriends support their belonging to the football team. "Some of them thought they might like to try it, too, but their parents wouldn't let them," said Gauthier.

The girls recommend the experience, though, to other girls who might want to try it. If they think they're tough enough and can take the pain, said Foss, it's worth it. Both girls say they have to work extra hard to complete homework assignments and keep their grades up because of the demands of being on the football team.

Neither have plans to pursue team membership after this year, because, as Gauthier puts it, "those high schoolers are too big."

Flutie will need '86 contract to play for Bears this season

BOSTON (AP) — Quarterback Doug Flutie and the Chicago Bears have reached verbal agreement on a contract for 1987 and 1988, but Flutie still may play in the current NFL season, Bob Woolf, his attorney, said Monday.

If the Bears want to activate the Heisman Trophy winner from Boston College this season, they would have to sign him to a contract for 1986, Woolf added.

"It's up to Chicago to decide," he said. "We don't want to shake-up anybody in Chicago."

The contract for the next two years probably will be signed by Wednesday, Woolf said. He can study the Bears' playbook but cannot practice with them this year unless he signs a 1986 contract, according to the attorney.

Flutie does sign for this year, the Bears' could allow him to practice for two weeks, but not play in a game, before trimming the team roster to make room for him, Woolf said.

In a radio interview with WGN-AM in Chicago, Bears coach Mike Ditka said Monday, "we'll see what happens" when asked if Flutie would play this season. "If we can't get him in uniform, then we'll get him in uniform."

Woolf gave no financial details of the contract but said the negotiations were simple, in contrast to the complicated discussions that took place when he negotiated Flutie's deal with the New Jersey Generals and Donald Trump, owner of the USFL team.

"That was a very legal document," Woolf said. "This is a very simple procedure."

"This has been my goal all along to get him in the NFL and try to get him to play this year."

The Bears obtained the rights to Flutie last year in a trade with the Los Angeles Rams, who had taken him in the 11th round of the 1985 NFL draft. Chicago's starting quarterback Jim McMahon criticized the trade. "The Bears' backup quarterbacks are Steve Fuller and Mike Tomczak."

McMahon's very colorful Woolf said, "We're not trying to disrupt anything. They (the Bears) have made us no promises whatsoever."

NBA owners seem to be in no rush to expand

By WALTER BERRY
The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Six cities hoping to land an expansion franchise made presentations Monday to the NBA's Board of Governors, but league officials expressed mixed emotions about diluting their product.

Pro basketball

Representatives from Minneapolis, Toronto, Miami, Fla., Charlotte, N.C., Orlando, Fla., and Orange County, Calif., each made 30-minute presentations to the board's advisory and finance committee.

The 23-team league, which hasn't expanded since 1980, is expected to make its decision by December. Eighteen votes are needed for final approval.

"We won't expand for the sake of expanding," San Antonio Spurs president Angelo Drossos said. "I've been an expansionist for a long time, would recommend," he said. "I'm supporting the issue of expansion. We hope to have a firm and positive response to the subject of expansion before we close these meetings."

Board members said they will examine each city's strength of ownership, playing facilities, population growth, market area and projected fan support before casting their votes.

"It's a lot for the owners to absorb. They're still in the middle of discussing the pros and cons of expanding at this time," Stern said. "I've been preaching restraint and caution and the owners are reading that back to me. It's a normal businessman's caution. We've tried very hard to tell each of the cities that they were welcome to apply, but we didn't tell them to build massive media campaigns. How much money they spent is not going to determine anything."

Toronto has NBA Hall of Famer Will Chamberlain as one of its financial backers and plans to play in Maple Leaf Gardens, which seats 16,102 for hockey.

The Toronto Huskies hosted the first NBA game in 1946, but the city's team folded after the 1946-47 season and league officials are skeptical of competing again against hockey.

Nick Mileti, who owned the NBA's Cleveland Cavaliers from 1970-80, heads the Orange County group that hopes to build a 20,000-seat Westdome Arena in Anaheim.

League officials, however, said they are hesitant to add a third NBA team to the Southern California area. The Los Angeles Lakers and Los Angeles Clippers are already there.

Former Philadelphia 76ers player and coach Billy Cunningham is a partner in the Miami group with ex-76ers General Manager Pat Williams involved with Orlando's bid.

Miami already has its nickname of "Heat" chosen, has started construction on a 15,000-seat arena and has down payments on about 8,000 season tickets. Orlando has the nickname "Magic," down payments on about 14,000 season tickets and is ready to break ground for a 16,930-seat facility if it gets a franchise.

The Charlotte group, backed by business magnate George Shinn, has started building a new 23,500-seat arena and has sold more than 7,000 season tickets. But with a population of about 300,000, Charlotte is the smallest of the six cities seeking an expansion franchise.

Minneapolis hopes to have an 18,000-seat downtown arena built in two years while its team plays in the Metrodome.

Harvey Ratner and Marvin Wolfenson are trying to bring the NBA back to Minnesota after unsuccessfully trying to buy the Utah Jazz last summer for $25 million. The two businessmen "once owned" about a percent of the Minneapolis Lakers in 1957-60 before the team transferred to Los Angeles.

Minneapolis, Miami and Anaheim all had teams in the old American Basketball Association while the ABA Carolina Cougars played some of its games in Charlotte before eventually moving to Denver and becoming the NBA's Nuggets.

Each of the six groups has paid a partially refundable $100,000 application fee.

Dallas was the last city to be granted an expansion franchise six years ago. The Mavericks were second in the league in attendance last season at 16,901 per home game.

"What we need is another Dallas," Drossos said. "The Mavericks are the blueprint for a success franchise."

Stern said 20 of the league's 23 existing clubs "are operating with a profit" and "it's a much healthier situation than it's been."

"But our business turnaround hasn't completed that cycle. Whether it's time to respond with a full-blown expansion plan is the issue on the table. You don't make money by grabbing a few bucks by expanding. Just because there are more cars in the parking lot doesn't mean you have to expand."

The response of the owners has been a cautious one so far. But what their resolution will be, I'm not prepared to say. Anything can happen."

Pease, Rice make UM Big Sky's top passing club

BOISE (AP) — Nevada-Reno, with a crucial victory over Idaho last weekend, continues to dominate Big Sky Conference football statistics.

But lowly Montana, 2-3, has become the Big Sky's best passing team under new coach Don Riffe. UNR, No. 1-ranked in the latest NCAA Division I-AA poll, is the only undefeated team in the league, 7-0.

The Wolf Pack also continues to have the nation's best Division I-AA offense, averaging 525 yards per game despite scoring only 17 points against Idaho.

College football

Montana, behind record-setting quarterback Brent Pease of Mountain Home and receiver Mike Rice of Twin Falls, has rolled up 1,453 yards and 14 touchdowns in five games, an average of 290 yards per game.

Next is Nevada-Reno, which is averaging 284 yards per game. The top five Big Sky teams are separated by only 12 passing yards per game.

Boise State, 4-2 overall and 3-1 in Big Sky, continues to dominate defensive statistics. The Broncos have allowed only six touchdowns in six games and 204 yards per game.

UNR, in contrast, has scored 38 touchdowns in its first seven games. The Wolf Pack continues to be the Big Sky's best rushing team, averaging 241 yards per game. Runner-up Boise State is far behind at 159 yards per game.

Overall, UNR's average of 325 yards per game is ahead of Idaho's average of 333, and the Wolf Pack continues to average more than 40 points per game.

Reno quarterback Eric Beavers is the Big Sky's top-rated quarterback, 17-3, with 116 completions in 192 passes, good for 14 touchdowns and 1,819 yards. Next is Idaho's Scott Lineham, 13-4 with 129 completions in 223 passes, also good for 14

Vandals slip from 12th to 15th in I-AA survey

MISSION, Kansas (AP) — The University of Nevada at Reno, a 17-13, victor last weekend over 12th-ranked Big Sky Conference rival Idaho, has retained its No. 1 standing in the NCAA Division I-AA college football poll for the fifth straight week.

The Wolf Pack, now 7-0, picked up all four of the first-place votes from the panel of college athletic directors that votes in the weekly survey.

Idaho, now 4-2, fell from 12th to 15th place. UNR and Idaho are the only Big Sky teams rated in this week's survey.

touchdowns. In total offense, Lineham leads with an average of 296 yards per game, and Pease has moved into second with 283 yards per game.

Beavers is third at 269 yards per game.

Reflecting Nevada-Reno's dominance of the league, the two best rushers are from UNR, Lucius Floyd at 100.8 yards per game and Charver Fager at 85.6. Fager leads the Big Sky with 60 points, kicker Marty Zendejas is second with 57 and Floyd is third with 54 points.

Montana's Rice is the Big Sky's top receiver, averaging seven catches per game, with seven touchdowns and 522 receiving yards. He set a school record with four TD receptions last week against Idaho State, equalling the league record.

Rice, a 6-0, 195-pound senior from

Twin Falls, helped Montana to a 38-31 come-from-behind victory over Idaho State to give the Grizzlies their first Big Sky victory of the 1986 season. He had 12 receptions for 150 yards and his four TD catches were a school record. Rice also had four punt returns for 20 yards.

For a time, Rice was in the doghouse of Montana Coach Don Riffe, after dropping a pass in the fourth quarter. But a few minutes later, he redeemed himself, catching his record fourth touchdown pass of the day to lead Montana to victory.

With Rice's four TD catches, and five touchdowns passes, from quarterback Brent Pease, Montana dedicated its new Washington-Grizzly Stadium on a winning note.

"The stadium and the crowd worked in our favor, primarily at the beginning and at the end of the game," Riffe said.

ISU Coach Jim Koetter said his team couldn't put enough pressure on Pease. "If you're going to play man-to-man coverage, you better put pressure on the quarterback," he said.

A controversial broken play on a punt turned into a school-record 90-yard touchdown and propelled MSU to victory over Northern Arizona.

Kookaburra handily beats Australia III

PREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — Kookaburra III easily outdistanced Australia III today in the third day of the series to select a 12-meter yacht to defend for Australia in the America's Cup.

Kookaburra III chalked up its third victory in as many days as it trounced Australia III by four minutes, 30 seconds. It was an impressive victory for skipper Iain Murray, the boat's designer. Australia III won the 12-meter world championships here earlier in the year.

Kookaburra III took Gordon Lucas and Australia III by nine seconds at the start and was 1:18 ahead at the first windward mark. Lucas was able to gain 15 seconds on the downwind leg, but from that point it was all Murray's race.

Alan Bond's syndicate received a little consolation as Australia IV defeated Kookaburra II by 20 seconds. But it was little consolation as the new Ben Lexcon-designed boat trailed at the fifth mark by 10 seconds, and only a bad spinnaker set allowed Colin Beashel and Australia IV to regain the lead.

Kookaburra II was flying a protest flag from its transom as the race ended. The protest will not be heard until Tuesday.

The exact cause of Kookaburra's spinnaker problems is unknown, but the giant balloon sail appeared to be snagged on the spinnaker pole. When the crew finally got the sail up, gallons of water poured from it.

In the other race, South Australia broke into the victory column with a victory over Steak 'n Kidney by 1:12. It was the third straight defeat for the Sydney boat skippered by Fred Neil.

Your phone is part of your home. And at Mountain Bell, we understand that when someone uses your phone to invade your privacy, it's like an unwanted visitor coming through your front door. But we want you to know that you can have the last word with these callers. By not wasting any words with them at all.

If the caller is a salesperson using a hard sell, you don't have to listen. Just say you're not interested, and hang up.

If you get an obscene call, or the caller remains silent, don't stop to listen. Above all, don't talk to them. Hang up on their hang-ups. And if these callers keep after you or threaten you, get in touch right away with the police and your local Mountain Bell service representative. We'll help you find other ways to deal with these calls.

No matter what kind of unwanted calls you get, let your actions speak louder than their words. By hanging up, it's the best way we know to protect the privacy of your home. And your phone.

For the way you live.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
The Associated Press

Runner-up Alabama made up some ground Monday on No. 1-ranked Miami as the top seven teams remained the same in The Associated Press college football poll.

Miami's 35-13 victory over Cincinnati enabled the Hurricanes to remain No. 1 for the fourth consecutive week. They received 55 of 59 first-place votes and 1,174 of a possible 1,164 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Meanwhile, Alabama crushed Tennessee 56-28 and received three first-place votes and 1,111 points. Last week, Miami led 56-2 in first-place votes and 1,175-1,099 in points.

Nebraska held onto third place with 1,024 points by trouncing Missouri 48-17 and Michigan's last-second 20-17 triumph over Iowa enabled the Wolverines to stay No. 4 with 997 points while the Hawkeyes slipped from eighth place to 11th.

Fifth-ranked Oklahoma blanked

Oklahoma State 19-9 and received 937 points. The other first-place vote went to No. 6 Penn State, which routed Syracuse 42-7 and received 902 points. Seventh-ranked Auburn trimmed Georgia Tech 31-10 and polled 861 points.

Washington swamped Bowling Green 48-9 and climbed from ninth place to eighth with 704 points. Arizona State jumped from 10th to ninth with 695 points by downing Southern California 29-20 and Texas A&M rose from 11th to 10th with 686 points by edging Baylor 31-30.

Arizona, Clemson, UCLA, Stanford, Southern Methodist and North Carolina State.

Maryland reportedly trying to ease Driesell out of job

College basketball

BALTIMORE (AP) — The head fundraiser for a private University of Maryland booster club said Monday he's not ready to step aside for basketball coach Lefty Driesell, whose future reportedly is being negotiated this week.

Tom Fields, 68, said reports that Driesell may take over his job at the Maryland Education Foundation have been rumored since Driesell signed a 10-year contract in 1984. Fields also said he didn't know about the recent proposal, but wasn't surprised, and hasn't made any effort to confirm it with "university" oficials.

"They're probably thinking down the road," Fields said of officials and attorneys, who were negotiating this week about Driesell's contract.

The basketball coach and his program have been criticized since the June 19 cocaine-induced death of basketball star Len Bias.

JIM McMAHON
Is he hurt?

Ditka vague about status of McMahon

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — There's a growing mystery in the Chicago Bears' football camp involving quarterback Jim McMahon and Coach Mike Ditka.

McMahon did not play in Sunday's 27-10 loss to the Minnesota Vikings and it's beginning to appear he will not play next Sunday against the Detroit Lions.

Prep football

There also was an indication that Ditka wants to get quarterback Doug Flutie signed soon. Flutie, the 1984 Heisman Trophy winner, was acquired last week from the Los Angeles Rams.

"I don't know," Ditka said at his press conference Monday when asked if McMahon could practice this week. "I haven't written anybody off, but I have to know something."

"He says he's hurt and he can't practice," Ditka said. "I have to know. Can you play this week? Can you play next week? When's the guy going to play?"

McMahon injured a shoulder in the Sept. 7 opener against Cleveland and missed the next two games which Mike Tomczak started. McMahon came back for two more starts as the Bears went to 6-0 before Steve Fuller was given the starting assignment against Minnesota.

In addition to the shoulder injury, McMahon has been troubled by a bad back.

Asked when he could play, when he could practice and how he felt, McMahon said, "I don't know to all the questions."

Walter Payton, the NFL's all-time leading rusher, dashed through the locker room and said, "Don't say a word, Jim."

"I ain't," McMahon said, and with that comment he departed.

There was some thought that the distractions arising from the acquisition of Flutie and the reaction of some players in general and McMahon in particular led to the loss to the Vikings.

Ditka said, "I thought we had some good practices last week. What happened realistically is, we underestimated how good they'd play."

"Sometimes you grope without finding the answers."

As for Flutie, Ditka said earlier on a radio show that he wanted to sign him this week and that he wanted him in a Bears' uniform this year so that he could learn the system.

Pressed on the statement, Ditka said, "I don't retract anything. We need insurance at that position now. Yes, we could carry four quarterbacks."

General Manager Jerry Vainisi said he was close to signing Flutie last week and last.

In Boston, Flutie's attorney, Bob Woolf, said the quarterback and the team had reached agreement on a contract for the next two years.

No secret why Barcelona got Summer Games: Samaranch

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — For decades, Barcelona has sought unsuccessfully to host the Olympics. 1992 will be different.

The Catalan city, the hometown of International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch, was selected last week to host the 1992 games.

Several projects already have been started with a view to the Olympics.

Although Samaranch did not campaign for his hometown of Barcelona, he is refraining from voicing the overwhelming victory for the Spanish city was viewed by the president's admirers as an endorsement for his progressive leadership.

It took only three votes of voting for Barcelona to gain the necessary majority. Of the 85 IOC voters, 47 cast their ballots for Barcelona, 43 for Brisbane and 5 for Belgrade.

Amsterdam was eliminated in the first round, Birmingham, England, in the second.

So excited by the victory that he kissed everyone in sight, including a Barcelona reporter, the New York Times' Barcelona's charismatic mayor, Pasqual Maragall, said the vote was a tribute to Samaranch.

"I think the president — now listen carefully: I want to be clear on this — had an effect on the vote in a moral sense, but only in that sense," Maragall said. "The vote was a recognition of his contribution to the Olympics."

The vote also verified the influence of Horst Dasser, the West German manager of Adidas and creator of ISL, which has a lucrative marketing contract with the IOC.

Dasser is not an IOC member, but he is widely believed to be the man who placed Samaranch in power.

While Samaranch, bound by neutral did not bid on Barcelona's behalf, Dasser did.

One Italian sports official who is close to the IOC said Thursday that Dasser would deliver 30 votes for Barcelona on the first ballot.

He overestimated. Dasser's Barcelona received 29 votes on the first ballot.

"The Barcelona Games" would be centered on the "new acropolis" of Montjuic, a hill situated between the city and its port. It would be the setting for several venues and the media centers.

The stadium on Montjuic, built in 1929, is being remodeled to hold 70,000 spectators.

Another area would be downtown Barcelona. The Parc del Mar area, northeast of the Olympic village, is the site of the Olympic village.

Construction has begun on the Olympic pavilion, designed by Japanese architect Tadao Ando, with a capacity for 17,000 spectators.

Other venues include the city of Barcelona, volleyball and handball, and for 23,000 for boxing and other sports.

Meanwhile, a council of 300 Spanish business, cultural and sports personalities has been set up to promote the city.

The cost: approximately $765 million. Organizers estimate income at $523 million, but that figure includes a low estimate of $250 million from television revenues and no money from ticket sales, accommodations, program and poster sales, services, and licensing and sponsorship contracts.

Other revenue is expected from postal lotteries, soccer pools and the issuance of coins and stamps.

Standoff may unravel OPEC output accord

By ROBERT BURNS
The Associated Press

GENEVA — A bitter standoff between Kuwait and a group of non-Arab OPEC members threatened Monday to unravel a nearly completed agreement on oil production controls aimed at strengthening oil prices.

The 13 oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries held a flurry of private, bilateral meetings throughout the 15th day of their conference, but failed to end the deadlock.

The ministers said they planned to meet again probably today.

In Riyadh, a late-evening statement from the Saudi government said King Fahd had initiated a series of contacts with the leaders of other Arabian Peninsula nations.

In an attempt to "find a way out" of the stalemate threatening the Geneva talks, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Saudi Arabia usually act as an alliance in OPEC negotiations.

The terse Saudi statement did not say whether the king had proposed a solution, but it appeared to signal he was stepping up pressure on the Kuwaiti government to soften its uncompromising position.

In Geneva, Ecuadorian Oil Minister Javier Espinosa-Tera said he saw the Saudi declaration as a "positive" sign.

Gholamreza Aghazadeh, the oil minister of Iran, told reporters he believed a solution could be found soon, but most others were clearly doubtful.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani, appearing discouraged, said, "No, it doesn't look that good."

The central problem — described by most delegations as the only obstacle to a final agreement — was Kuwait's demand for a bigger share of OPEC's total oil production, starting Nov. 1.

Kuwait's oil minister, Ali Khalifa al-Sabah, said after the morning discussions that he had not backed down from his demand for a 10 percent increase in Kuwait's oil production quota, to 500,000 barrels a day.

A barrel is the equivalent of 42 gallons.

"We will not step back," al-Sabah told reporters late Monday afternoon.

The most vocal resistance came from Iran and Venezuela, although some other delegations also felt a Kuwaiti increase was unjustified, according to conference sources speaking on condition they not be identified.

Iran's opposition was believed to be linked to Kuwait's financial assistance to Iran's war enemy, Iraq.

Venezuela argued that Kuwait is one of the wealthiest OPEC members and that any increases in production should go to the cartel's needier members.

"For Venezuela, Indonesia, Nigeria and other countries it would be very difficult to go back (home) and explain how come one of the wealthiest countries in the world gets a higher quota," said Ecuador's oil minister, Javier Espinosa Tera.

The three countries that Espinosa mentioned are among the most heavily indebted of Third World nations and are suffering severely from the recent fall in oil prices.

Over the weekend, OPEC moved to the brink of completing its agreement, which would extend until Dec. 31 a modified set of production limits designed to boost oil prices.

The key breakthrough came Saturday when Saudi Arabia dropped its insistence that the oil ministers renegotiate the cartel's production quotas. The Saudis said they saw no chance for reaching such an agreement and so endorsed a majority-backed proposal for another interim arrangement.

Visibly weary from the 15 straight days of negotiations and frustrated by Kuwaiti demands, many OPEC delegates said Monday's deadlock could mean a collapse of the conference.

"Hopes are fading" for a solution, one delegate said privately during afternoon efforts to find a compromise.

Yamani had said in a Kuwaiti newspaper interview Sunday that without an agreement to continue restraining OPEC's production, oil prices would collapse.

Program trading, rising interest rates

More Monday blues leads Dow to lose

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK — The stock market continued another case of the Monday blues, declining broadly in selling attributed to rising interest rates and activity by professional program traders.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which was up 43.87 points last week, fell 26.02 to 1,811.02.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange was sluggish at 100.1 million shares, down from 124.11 million Friday.

Interest rates rose in the credit markets, pushing prices of long-term government bonds down about 1/8 for every $1,000 in face value.

Analysts said upward pressure on interest rates helped prompt weakness in stock-index futures, and that in turn, led professional traders to buy the futures and sell individual stocks.

The Commerce Department plans to issue figures Wednesday on the economy's growth for the third quarter of the year.

Losers among the blue chips included International Business Machines, down 1 1/2 at 120 1/4; General Electric, down 1/2 at 42 1/2; Sears Roebuck, down 1/2 at 41 1/4; and American Telephone & Telegraph, down 1/2 at 25 1/4.

Goodyear Tire, which climbed last week on takeover speculation, fell back 1 1/2 to 40 1/4, inactive trading.

Bank stocks were mostly lower in the face of the increase in open-market interest rates. Manufacturers Hanover Corp. fell 1/2 to 42 1/2; Chase Manhattan 1/2 to 35 1/4; J.P. Morgan 1/2 to 82 1/4; and Chemical New York 1 to 43 1/4. Citicorp was off 1/2 at 77 1/4.

On the plus side, Zayre rose 1 1/2 to 22 1/4. The company reported plans to buy back as many as 3 million of its common shares.

USX gained 1/2 to 27 as investors speculated on what moves the company might make to counter a takeover bid by financier Carl Icahn.

In the overall tally on the Big Board, declining issues outnumbered advances by nearly 3 to 1, with 1,112 down, 408 up and 405 unchanged. The NYSE's composite index dropped 1.46 to 156.02.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 125.84 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell 3.13 to 261.83, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 2.67 at 255.97.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market dropped 2.21 to 353.51. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 261.31, down 1.85.

Congress extends life of futures regulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress approved and sent to President Reagan this past week a bill extending for three years the life of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the federal agency that regulates trading of futures contracts.

By voice vote and without debate, the Senate approved the companion measure, which had been given House approval earlier in the week.

The measure also contained a handful of unrelated amendments, including one designed to enhance foreign confidence in the quality of U.S. grain by prohibiting the practice of adding dockage, or foreign material, to shipments bound for export.

Other changes adopted included moving up the date for income subsidy payments to wheat farmers from the summer, when such checks are usually paid out, to November; and giving the Agriculture Department more flexibility in deployment of meat inspectors to packing plants so that problems can be concentrated on the meat.

The meat inspection change concerned some consumer groups, which fear that it would lessen federal scrutiny of meat processing and raise the chance that contaminated meat could find its way onto consumers' tables.

The CFTC was created in 1974 to oversee trading on exchanges of contracts for future delivery of agricultural goods, metals, financial instruments and other commodities. The bill would extend its authority through 1989 and beef up its enforcement powers.

Futures trading has grown rapidly, from 26 million contracts in 1975 to nearly 170 million in 1985. The markets serve to establish prices for commodities and let farmers and traders reduce risks through hedging, as well as offering opportunities to profit through speculation.

The bill calls for a two-year study of leverage trading, a much-criticized off-exchange practice in which traders put small amounts down to buy the rights to purchase precious metals contracts at prices in the future. Only two firms now are authorized to conduct such business.

Dropped from the bill was a provision giving awards about 175 acres of national forest land in Nebraska to the state for a parking lot at Chadron State Park. A compromise was worked out providing for a long-term lease of the land.

Business' confidence sags

NEW YORK (AP) — Business leaders in virtually all major industries are far less confident about the U.S. economy than they were only a few months ago, the Conference Board says.

The group said Sunday its index of business confidence tumbled to 50 in the third quarter from 61 in the first and second quarters of this year. The measure uses a 1985 base of 100.

Hamburger chain seeks Chapter 11 protection

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP)—Flakey-Jakes, the "build-your-own" gourmet hamburger chain, plans to file for protection under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy law.

The Bellevue-based company said it has received a buyout offer and is evaluating the proposal from an unidentified suitor.

The company also announced the resignations of four of its top officers, as well as the closures of three restaurants in Renton, Federal Way and Redmond.

Flakey Jakes said it would no longer offer its series B convertible stock, and added all funds held in escrow will be refunded "expeditiously."

The company said Wallace B. Doolin, who is president, chief operating officer and a director, would succeed Carney as chief executive officer.

Doolin said the company was forced to seek protection from creditors when it failed to sell $4.5 million in bonds. Flakey-Jakes was built for high volume and fast growth, but the level of business has not been able to keep up with operating costs, he said.

Flakey Jakes continues to operate 10 company-owned and 33 franchised restaurants in 19 states, mostly in the West.
